Resume Cut-Off Job, Halted By Union

CONTRACTOR, LABOR HEADS REACH TRUCE

Windsor Project Continued After 80 Clevelanders Force 30 From Jobs.

DEMAND 'CLOSED SHOP'

Order Workers to Drop Tools; Sheriff Warns Against Any Intimidation of Men.

A truce had brought at least a temporary end today to a dispute over labor on the Windsor cut-off paving job.

Work was resumed this morning after operations had been held up half a day yesterday by a delegation of Cleveland union men who forced approximately 30 workmen off the job.

F. W. Jacobs, superintendent for the W. E. Ringwald Construction company, which has the contract for the job, said about 80 men whom he said represented a Cleveland labor union appeared on the project at noon.

Drive Up In Cars.

"They drove up in machines and took the tools from the workmen and ordered them off the job," Jacobs said.

He said he believed the delegation was brought here by Cleveland and Mansfield labor unions who have objected to the use of non-union labor on the job. He said that three labor groups had sought to organize the men on the job and wanted a working agreement with the contractor calling for a closed shop.

As the result of the truce the unions were given the opportunity to organize the workmen outside of working hours. W. E. Ringwald, senior member of the construction firm took a definite stand, however, against any working agreement or the hiring of union labor exclusively.

Meet With Union Heads.

The decision was reached last night at a meeting of union leaders with Ringwald and Jacobs at

Confiscates Still Built On Stage For Dance Band

Federal agents and county officers went to a dance hall south of Mansfield on the Morrow county line late yesterday and confiscated a 50-gallon whisky still built on the orchestra stage.

Still warm from recent brewing operation, the still was fired with wood and coal in what Sheriff E. P. Long described as "typical mountaineer fashion." Five gallons of whisky and five barrels of mash were seized.

The building which the officers raided had once been used as a dance hall, a "night spot" for patrons from the northern Morrow and southern Richland county communities. The building is located adjacent to what is known as the East Miller school.

No one was in the building at the time officers entered and an investigation is being made to determine ownership of the apparatus, Sheriff Long said.

Japs Claim Nazi Aid in Case of War

Dispatches From Berlin Say Germany's Ready to Oppose Reds.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Japanese circles in Berlin, according to a Reuters dispatch today, claim that Germany has promised Japan her moral support and "support from other points of view" in the event of a Russo-Japanese war.

German and Italian newspapers in the last few days have openly professed the sympathy of the Fascist nations with their anti-comintern ally Japan.

* * *

The reich's alleged promise of aid to Japan extending beyond moral support today aroused keen speculation regarding the relations between the miniature Russo-Japanese war at Changkufeng and the European international situation.

Is Japan, as charged in Moscow, acting at the behest of Germany to harass the Soviets in the Far East and divert their attention from the Cechoslovakian crisis?

Or is Russia, confident that Germany is not yet ready to march, aggressively pin-pricking Japan to slow up Nippon's drive on Hankow?

* * *

The German-Italian-Japanese pact, it was stressed at its inception, is directed against the Communist International rather than against the Soviet union. That it contains any military assistance provisions has been denied repeatedly by the signatories, but many diplomats believe the pact includes some secret military clauses.

Europe also is wondering about the French and Czech pacts with Russia, which call for their automatic assistance if the Soviets are the victims of unprovoked aggression. In France there is a sharp difference of opinion as to whether the pact would be operative if Russia, through warring on Japan, should be attacked by Germany.

Tokyo Claims Victory In Clash.

TOKYO — (INS) — Up rugged slopes, strewn with the bodies of Soviet soldiers, Red army forces on the Changkufeng "front" charged again today only to be hurled back with further heavy losses, Japanese accounts said.

'GLAD TO TALK'

Berrodin 'Welcomes' Probe of Pension Affairs.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Henry J. Berrodin, chief of the state division of aid for the aged, said today he would be "glad" to go to Washington and tell the federal social security board how "we conduct affairs in our division."

Reports from Washington indicated that Berrodin would be called to testify in an investigation following charges that Berrodin mailed out a letter, with old-age pension checks asking that the pensioner support Governor Davey.

Berrodin said:

"I will welcome an opportunity to tell federal authorities that the state division of aid for the aged has been conducted efficiently, impartially and without politics."

BOMBED AGAIN

Canton Target of Jap Planes; Casualties Feared High.

CANTON, China—(U.P.)—Japanese airplanes again raided this metropolis today.

It was the second raid in as many days and it was believed that the toll would be high.

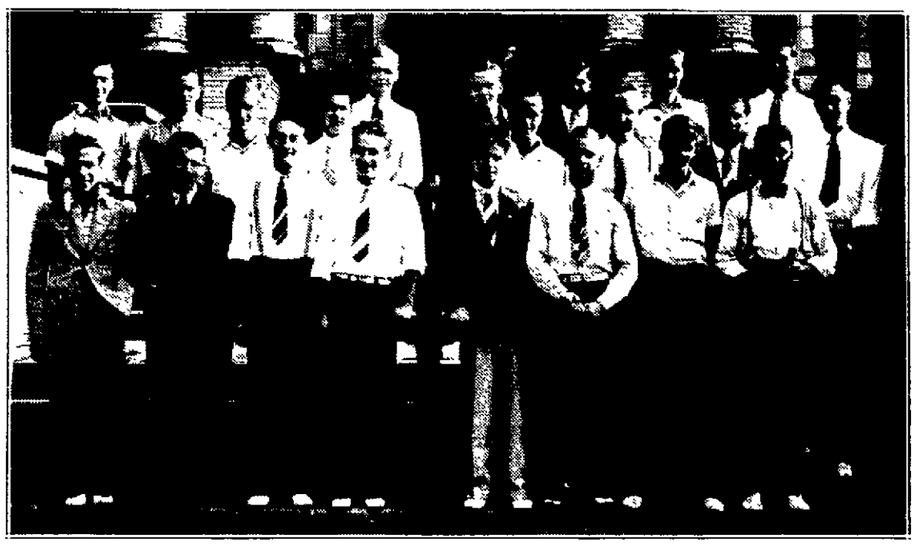
Late today rescue workers were still uncovering bodies in the ruins. One conservative estimate placed the dead at more than 100.

SEARCH FUTILE

Japanese Ship Gives Up Hunt for Missing Clipper.

TOKYO—(U.P.)—The Osaka Syosen K. K. Steamship company announced today that its steamer, Canberra Maru, radioed that it was proceeding to Nagasaki after a fruitless search for the Hawaii Clipper which disappeared on a flight from Guam to Honolulu.

They're 'Minute Men' In Sales Crusade



Tackling the "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign in much the same spirit as they would an enemy line on the gridiron, a group of 35 college men started out this morning to tell Mansfield housewives of the part they can play in the crusade against depression. These "minute men" will cover the entire city within the week, bringing the purpose of the crusade directly to women.

Shown above are 21 of the group, who congregated yesterday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce to talk over plans for their part of the campaign. They are, front row, left to right: John Hattman, Harmon Bradford, Woodrow Faulkner, Jack Beattie, jr., Robert Rub, Richard Porch, Pete Hackedorn, H. J. Doehla.

'Straws in Wind'

Actual Instances Cited, Showing Effect Of 'Sales Mean Jobs' Drive

Interesting reactions to the "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign came to light this morning at the "pep" meeting at the Leland hotel, when sales employers related actual incidents that had occurred in their own businesses. Each story was a "straw in the wind" to show how the sales wind blows in the crusade for better business and more jobs. . . .

* * *

There was the commercial photographer who solemnly stated that he knew the Sales Mean Jobs crusade had bettered business conditions because his own business was all shot to pieces!

"It's a sure weather-vane," he said, "that whenever a sales or merchandising event is successful all over the city, my business suffers—although I make up for it when the sales are over and people have more leisure in which to have their pictures taken."

"However," he concluded, "I have sold in the past week two motion picture cameras that I attribute in part, at least, to the 'Sales Mean Jobs' campaign."

* * *

The representative of an electric appliance concern told the group that he had sold a refrigerator to a woman prospect who had planned to buy next year, but who decided to buy now as her contribution to the "Sales Mean Jobs" drive.

* * *

Most cheering report was from a prominent auto dealer who said that business had been "terrible" up until last week, and that the first week of the campaign his agency sold more new and used cars than during the entire month of July.

* * *

The proprietor of a Main street hardware store told of selling a washing machine to a woman who told him that she hadn't intended to buy this year, but wanted to "help a good cause along."

* * *

The manager of a major department store reported a 30 per cent increase in business last week over the same week last year, and that Community Bargain Days were also held the same week last year as this. . . . Another manager said his sales for last week, the first week of the crusade were 18 per cent higher than the preceding week.

* * *

Then there was the report of $600 worth of office equipment sold to a customer last week, who had definitely decided to wait until next year "when business may be better," but who had been influenced by the crusade to make the investment this year.

BALKS INQUIRY

Supreme Court Justice Halts Pennsy Graft Jury.

HARRISBURG — (U.P.) — Chief Justice John W. Kephart of the state supreme court issued a writ today staying the grand jury investigation of alleged graft in Gov. George H. Earle's administration "at least until September."

Justice Kephart granted the stay on request of Attorney General Guy K. Bard and the special legislative committee that is trying to take over the inquiry.

The county judge assigned to preside over the grand jury investigation, Judge Paul N. Schaeffer, held yesterday that new laws designed to block the grand jury and put the inquiry into the hands of the legislature were unconstitutional.

Still a Chance to Vote!

(AN EDITORIAL)

PASSAGE of the school bond issue requires 65 per cent favorable vote—in other words, if 10,000 votes are cast on this proposal, 6,500, or more, must be "for" the issue in order to pass it.

A minority is thus placed in position to defeat the issue and prevent Mansfield from going ahead with its school building and remodeling program at a time when a million-dollar project can be carried through at a cost of $550,000 to local taxpayers, with the balance of $450,000 coming as a federal grant.

The power of a minority to keep Mansfield from proceeding to provide as safe, sanitary and well equipped schools as there are in other cities of this size, is what makes it so necessary that every voter who favors the bond issue go to the polls and cast a vote FOR the school bonds.

Voting places will be open until 6:30 this evening. If you have not yet voted there is still time for you to do so.

CRUSADE 'PAYS' FIRST DIVIDEND

Increase in Business Volume as High as 30 Per Cent Reported First Week.

Increases in volume of business as the direct result of the first week of the "Sales Mean Jobs" crusade range as high as 30 per cent over the first week of August last year, and averages a five per cent gain throughout the city, it was announced this morning at the breakfast at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, attended by more than 50 sales employers and sales people.

The breakfast was a "pep" meeting for the beginning of the second week of the business recovery campaign. Optimistic reports and actual gains as a direct result of the campaign were related by employers and sales agents. Among those who spoke were F. H. Garrison, K. Miller, O. O. McCormick, John W. Graham, Carlton Fernyak, V. H. Lodde, Paul W. Williams, Thomas Siegenthaler and R. B. Gardner. Richard Fensch, general chairman of the crusade, presided at the meeting.

Coal dealers and building supply merchants reported a definite upward swing in business since the crusade opened a week ago today.

Immediately after the breakfast two sales talks were made to employe groups; one at the R. B. Maxwell company by D. O. Meese and another to the J. C. Penney workers by C. M. Crafton, president of the Retail Merchants association.

Two special merchandising days are scheduled for this week which will provide inducements to housewives to concentrate their buying on household articles. Tomorrow is "Home Appliances day" and salesmen for these items, both in stores and working outside, will make special efforts to interest women in replacing old or buying new appliances.

Saturday will be "Home Furnishings day" and attention will be centered on every item that goes into the furnishing of a home.

ASHLAND JURY INDICTS 4 IN 'LEVY' INQUIRY

Ault, Division Engineer, Named on Nine Counts in Report of Special Panel.

'SHAKEDOWN' CHARGED

State Officials Accused of Collecting Money for Davey's Campaign.

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASHLAND—I. R. Ault, engineer of the Ashland division of the state highway department, and three other department employes, today were named in indictments returned by a special grand jury charging "flagrant violations of the law protecting civil service employes from being assessed for campaign funds for the use of political office seekers."

Ault, appointed by Gov. Martin L. Davey, was indicted on nine counts. The three others indicted are Ralph Parrott, jr., assistant division engineer, one count; Donald B. Soles, chief mechanic of division No. 3, also indicted on nine counts, and Morgan J. Fitzpatrick, clerk, two indictments on 26 counts.

Indictments Kept Secret.

The five indictments, kept secret until today, were returned by the grand jury Monday evening at the conclusion of a five-day session, during which 40 witnesses were examined.

Names of those indicted were revealed by Clerk of Courts Charles A. McBride at noon today as he prepared the warrants for their arrest. The warrants were to be served today by Sheriff H. F. Wallett.

County Prosecutor Ross Siverling conducted the investigation after Common Pleas Judge C. C. Chapman ordered the panel convened, asserting that he had heard that civil service employes were being forced to contribute to Gov. Davey's campaign fund through the widely-publicized "5 per cent" levy.

The indicted men are scheduled to be arraigned Thursday.

The jury report also said: "We find from the testimony presented that the state highway equipment, gasoline and employes paid from state funds are used for purposes other than work author-

BURN TO DEATH

Society Couple Die as Flames Raze Home in East.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y.—(U.P.)—William T. Adee and his wife, prominent in eastern society were burned to death early today when flames enveloped their remodeled farm house in this fashionable colony.

A nursemaid escaped by leaping from a second story window carrying their one-year-old son. She broke her hand, but the child was unhurt.

The nursemaid was Sara Henton, 19.

Firemen located Mrs. Adee's body as soon as the fire was extinguished. They continued the search for Adee's body.

Adee, 35, was the son of the late Ernest R. Adee, prominent New York banker.

SEES NO RELIEF

Weatherman Predicts Little Change In Temperature.

Little relief from the heat that has kept the mercury around the 80's for the past week was in sight for Mansfield today as the weather bureau predicted no change in temperature.

Fair tonight and Wednesday was the prediction as the thermometer regisered 85 degrees at noon after dropping to a low of 66 degrees last night. The high yesterday was 88 degrees recorded shortly after noon.

75 PCT. INCREASE OVER '36 SEEN IN EARLY BALLOTING

Survey Here Coincides With Reports Throughout Ohio of 'Fairly Heavy' Vote; Close Races Predicted In Davey-Sawyer, Day-Taft Fights.

Richland county electors began an early trek to the polls today and indications after the first four hours of voting were that the county will cast a heavy vote in primary races for state, congressional and county offices.

Richland estimates coincided with those from all sections of the state where reports described "fairly heavy" voting during the early hours with an expected rush in the late afternoon and evening hours.

A 50 per cent vote from estimated total county registration of 34,000 was predicted for Richland county on the basis of a survey made in 20 Mansfield precincts by The News-Journal.

The survey indicated the county would cast a total vote of 17,500 which would be 75 per cent greater than in the 1936 primary.

The 20-precinct survey showed 876 voters had cast their ballots during the early hours. There were 560 votes cast in nearly the same 20 precincts at the primary two years ago.

Democrats In Majority.

Of the ballots cast in the morning hours, 534 were by Democrats and 342 by Republicans. Eight electors ignored party tickets and called only for ballots for the school bond issue proposal.

Don't Forget News-Journal Party

There are no set hours for The News-Journal election night party tonight—it starts when the first returns come in, which will be about 7 p. m. and ends when the outcome is assured in all the important contests.

Because of the unusually large primary vote over the state, the count may take longer than usual, but The News-Journal will stay on the job.

The News-Journal will flash returns from Mansfield, the county and the state on its screen.

The votes for the city school expansion program alone indicated that there were some electors who "never vote at a primary" marching to the polls in support or rejection of this one issue.

Election statisticians in Columbus predicted that the bitterest primary election in the state's history will attract a record 1,450,000 voters to the polls.

Close races were predicted in the intensive battles between Robert A. Taft and Supreme Court Judge Arthur H. Day for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator and between Gov. Martin L. Davey and Charles Sawyer for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Political observers in the state gave Senator Robert J. Bulkley a slight edge over former Governor George White in the contest for the Democratic U. S. senatorial nomination.

Bonds Stir Up City Voters.

The school bond issue which would pave the way for a million dollar school building improvement program, the gubernatorial race and the congressional contests served as the main drawing cards in the Richland primary.

The Democratic congressional nomination in the 17th district which includes Richland county, lies between William A. Ashbrook, incumbent, Frank Cave and Lee Purdy.

This district race and another between Philip Wolfe of Mansfield, Oliver H. Dockery and Walter Woodard for the Republican congressional nomination were highlights on the county ticket.

The only two strictly county contests are between Ralph C. Lutz, incumbent, and David W. Cook for the Democratic nomina-

Donahey, 3-time Ohio Governor Backs Sawyer at 11th Hour

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—U. S. Senator Vic Donahey, only man to hold office of Ohio governor for three consecutive terms, literally had the "last word" before Ohio voters went to the polls in the primary election today

The electorate was to nominate candidates for governor, United States senator, house of representatives, and minor offices.

Sen. Donahey's last moment pronouncement was an unqualified endorsement for Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, opponent of Gov. Martin L. Davey for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Davey is seeking a third term.

Efforts to have Sen. Donahey endorse Sawyer began quietly 10 days ago, but "Honest Vic" did not commit himself. Donahey apparently changed his mind last night after Gov. Davey mentioned his name in his final campaign speech. The governor referred to former Governor James M. Cox, Dayton publisher who had endorsed Sawyer earlier, as "a sour and bitter old man." The governor added that Cox had been "jealous and vindictive toward Governor Donahey."

Shortly afterward, Donahey issued the following statement:

"Since Martin L. Davey has seen fit to inject my name into the Ohio Democratic primary controversy over the governorship, it now becomes incumbent on me to let him and the world know that

Pleats Give Alluring Fullness To Daytime Wear

More pleats, please, seems to be the plea! Sports things, street frocks, afternoon things or evening clothes all rely on pleats to add to their charm. If the skirt isn't pleated, then it's likely that the blouse will be tightly or loosely-pleated. A pleated blouse with a plain skirt is as smart as can be. Gloria Dickson of the movies, at left, chooses a chic pleated blouse and wears it often. It is periwinkle blue crepe with a band of stitching joining the yoke. It is worn with a flared, navy blue crepe skirt and a broad patent leather belt. It is nice for general daytime wear. The other nice daytime suit, right, owes much to pleats, although this time it is the skirt that has pleat interest in the form of panel pleating. The sheer crepe is corded to edge the jacket-type overblouse. Pearl links catch the front opening of the blouse.

PLAN HOME-COMING AFFAIR NEXT MONTH

Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40, Daughters of Union Veterans, Prepare for Return to Memorial Building: Have Meeting.

PLANS for a home-coming celebration in September were discussed last night at the regular meeting of the Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40, Daughters of Union Veterans, at the Y. M. C. A. club rooms. The organization proposes to entertain with some kind of party after the remodeling of the Memorial building has been completed and the tent returns to its regular meeting rooms.

Mrs. Ella McHugh, president, was in charge of the business meeting during which the charter was draped for Mrs. Harriet Bolus and the resolution was reported and accepted. The committee in charge of the charter draping included Mrs. Alice Oster, Mrs. Allie Garrett and Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell.

Ways and means of raising funds for the tent were discussed by the members and a report on the 50th anniversary celebration of the founding of the Soldiers and Sailors home at Sandusky which was held this past week-end was given by those who had attended.

It was reported that the past month's relief work had amounted to $20.15. The next regular meeting of the organization will be held Aug. 22 at the Y. M. C. A. club rooms.

Variety of Queries Answered

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Do you know what the feeling is, of being homesick at home? Homesick for some place where you will be understood and be allowed to have a little fun, and not be the marked girl I am among my schoolmates?

Even if a bunch of girls are going to the movies, I'm not allowed to go with them. And a little party at the home of one of my classmates is out of the question. Mother and dad think dancing is wicked, cards the devil's prayerbook. I can't even go swimming.

I'm 15 years old and feel like swimming out so far that I'll never come back.

UNHAPPY.

If this girl's letter should happen to meet the eyes of any parents who are bringing up their daughters along the same line, I hope it will make them stop, look and listen. And please let me tell them that girls who "get in trouble" and write desperate letters to this column are the ones who've been brought up in homes like this, and never have been allowed to think for themselves.

* * *

Dear Miss Fairfax: I have a wonderful boy friend. See him almost every day and he always walks home with me, when he bumps into me casually. If I go anywhere at night and see him, he always comes home with me, but—isn't there always a but?—he never asks to take me out. If I want to go walking, and ask him to come along, he never refuses, but always seems willing

Miss Fairfax, I'm tired of asking him all the time I'd like him to ask me. A friend of his goes with my boy friend's twin sister, and he usually asks her to take a walk with him. However, I don't like to talk about this matter, as I feel it is none of her affair. What do you think is the trouble?

JILL.

You're very sensible, my dear, not to talk this matter over with the boy friend's sister. Girls, as a rule, talk too much about their affairs to other girls

But why worry because the young men doesn't ask you to walk with him. Probably he's the type who lets the girl take the initiative. Some men do. You might stop inviting him for a while and see how that works.

Freeze a can of fruit in your mechanical refrigerator Put the can itself in the freezing compartment or empty its contents into a freezing tray. Let stand for four hours. Serve as dessert.

There is some agitation for a boned evening slip to wear under sheer evening frocks. The strapless evening frocks are themselves boned to hold them in place, but lingerie shoulder straps are a pest under the very sheer gowns, and the boned strapless slip bodice has been suggested to remedy the matter. More power to it!

Falling Hair Warns Of Danger

By MME QUI VIVE

Upon one subject the sisterhood is agreed: coiffures have never been lovelier and hair has never been such a bother. The lady of leisure with money to fling can spend two hours every week at the beautery getting her locks laundered, undulated and rolled, nails shimmered For the rest of us hair is a sore trial. The standard of appearance is high, we can't fall below the mark, and if there isn't some stringy little whisp to roll up we're in luck. Keeping the old mop handsome is a tough job.

Because of all this the scalp gets no care at all other than the weekly or fortnightly scouring It is the garden from which the hirsute spinach grows The roots are there, it is there that it gets its nourishment. If the scalp is sick, tissues depleted, circulation sluggish, nobody with a grain of sense can expect to sport a luxuriant thatch, have tresses like shining silk.

When the hair starts to fall, brush it often and vigorously Yes, madame, the sight of ravelings in the brush will make your soul sick but rest assured that every hair that is yanked out by the bristles is completely and thoroughly dead. The sooner it is out the better. If all is well an understudy will take its place. If it doesn't—or they don't—you might as well go shopping for a wig.

Now that the finger wave appears to be weakening, destined to follow the way of many a beauty whim, and rolls and ringlets are the order of the day, it is possible to brush the hair without destroying the design It rolls are strong if the setting lotion is right, drying has been prolonged, the hair can be brushed briskly every night, twisted about the fingers, covered with a wave net, put to bed.

Brushing does more than groom and clean the strands; the bristles give a firm tug to the shafts, there is a reaction in the tiny muscles of the scalp in which the follicles rest There is a stimulation of the blood streams upon which the hair lives, has its being and from which it gets its groceries

The conscientious operator in any beauty shop where sufficient time is allowed for a shampoo and hair dress will give the scalp a five-minute massage before the sudsing. In the old days, before water was used for waving, a friction followed the shampoo while the hair was drying That's not possible now when wet ends are wrapped upon metal rollers or circled into sculptured ringlets.

Whenever the opportunity comes, give your scalp a rousing rubbing The night before the shampoo brush the hair thoroughly, strand by strand held up and away from the head Roll the brush so the bristles sweep over every single thread Apply hot olive or mineral oil to the scalp, rub until your elbows ache. This is a life-giving treatment.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, August 10.

JUDGING BY the lunar transits, this may be a day of great activity and commotion, with much stirring that may be presaged as reckless, hazardous and ruinous An impetuous tendency to false moves might incite jealousy and strife. However, if energies are directed into constructive channels, achievements and adventures of a very profitable nature may result.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is face a year in which they may make or mar their future by the manner in which highly-stimulated forces and faculties are directed

A child born on this day may be masterful, wayward and of high temper and bold initiative, but, at the same time, it may be proud, generous adventurous and ambitious. These qualities may fit it for a career of power if developed properly.

In serving new foods to a young child begin with a small portion of each food and arrange it as attractively as possible. Then gradually work up to large portions.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

A BACKWARD FINESSE

LEADING toward the longer string of cards is usually considered the normal way when a finesse is possible in either direction. A backward finesse can be the crucial play, however, in an occasional hand. Sometimes it is best to lead toward even a doubleton if the missing honor is marked by a previous play or bid, if there are insufficient entries to risk it in the other direction, or if you can afford to chance one defender getting the lead but don't dare let his partner in.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable).

One-Club was South's opening bid on this deal and when West passed North responded with 1-Diamond. South's next call was 1-No Trump, which North jumped to 3-No Trump.

Against this bid West led the spade 6 and the 10 from dummy held the trick. When East could not cover, it became apparent that he should be kept out of the lead to prevent his being able to come through the spades K-J, which would then be worthless.

Declarer therefore decided to try the diamond finesse to West and led the J. When this held, it was followed by a diamond to the A. A heart was played to the K and the diamond K cashed. It then became apparent that East had the winning diamond. South therefore gave up that suit and cashed his remaining winners, making game.

SWEDISH GIRLS WORK

"Every girl in Sweden has learned to be independent and earn her own living," Sweden's only woman senator, Miss Kerstin Hasselgren, now in the United States, is reported as saying.

"An increasing number keep right on at their jobs after marriage. There is no law against it and the extra pay check means couples can marry younger" Women have equal right with men in Sweden, this feminine lawmaker states. About the only position they can't hold at present are those of an officer in the army, or a state clergyman. And that, she says, "is only a question of time."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I SMILED back at Katherine as she put her query concerning my manner of speech to Queen Olga of Transvania.

"Your ears were remarkably accurate," I told her. "I did call her 'Olga,' but only because at the hospital in New Hampshire she especially requested Lillian and me to address her that way, and asked permission to call us 'Lillian' and 'Madge'."

"I remember now; you told me something about that. But that doesn't solve my dilemma

I took the milk from the stove, poured it into a cup and set it on the table. Katherine measured the drops into it and put the dropper away before I answwered her.

"What dilemma?" I countered, although I well knew what she was going to say next.

"I never nursed a queen, active or ex before," she said, cup in hand, "and, of course, she looks on me as a sort of upper servant. Yet I can't very well call her Your Majesty if she wants to give her title the go-by. What are you going to have Katie call her? I probably can horn in on that."

Madge Threatens.

She turned toward the door, but I grasped her arm to the peril of the steaming contents of the cup she carried.

"If you dare say anything like that again," I threatened, "you will have what Dicky would call the 'lambasting of your life.' I shall not spare the rod."

She laughed mischievously.

"You are sweet, Madge," she said with grateful warmth in her voice. "But just you wait. You still have Mother Graham to reckon with. What do you think she's going to say when even you address the 'queen' so familiarly? If she had her way, she'd have us all backing out from the royal presence with salaams."

I gave an echoing laugh, but a rueful one.

"I know," I said, remembering many occasions when my mother-in-law's insistence upon ridiculous formality had made things most embarrassing for me. "But I'm going to wait to cross that particular bridge until it straightens up and hits me between the eyes. In the meantime, I'm going to see to it that Olga understands your real status in this household with no possibility of a mistake."

Doesn't Really Care.

"You are a darling, but you know I really don't care," she said as she turned again to the door.

"I am perfectly aware of that," I told her truthfully, "but that's all the more reason why somebody should look after you. How about it? Shall I come back into the dining room with you?"

"Why not?" she countered, and I followed her back to the dining room, where Lillian and Olina stood in silent watchful vigil over Olga, whose eyes were closed, but whose breathing was regular, and whose face was less pallid than when we had left her.

As we reached the side of the couch, Katherine solved the immediate problem of address by thrusting the cup into my hand.

"She is more used to you," she murmured. "Get her to drink it! I want to speak to Lillian."

She signaled to Lillian and stepped back from us to a point where their low tones could not be heard. I put my lips close to Olina's ear.

"Please speak to your mother," I said, "not abruptly, but so that she will open her eyes."

I would have given the cup into Olina's hands, but I knew the girl's concern for her mother had made her intensely nervous, and I feared she might drop it.

"Maman!" Olina said softly. "Maman!"

The big beautiful eyes opened again, and the queen smiled faintly at her child.

"What is it, Darling?" she asked

"Mrs. Graham has something hot for you to drink," Olina answered.

Queen Olga looked past me with searching eyes.

"Where is the other so lovely lady?" she asked. "Who is she?"

A delicious topping for hot buttered toast may be made by combining a fourth of a cup of brown sugar with two tablespoons of orange juice, one tablespoon of lemon juice, two tablespoons of soft butter and half a teaspoon of cinnamon. The mixture should be spread on eight pieces of toast. The toast should be left under the broiler or in the oven for several minutes to melt the topping.

Cream Roquefort cheese when you want to add it to salad dressing mixtures. Use a fork or press the cheese through a sieve.

Eggnog will improve in flavor if it is allowed to "ripen" a couple of days in a cold place. It may be stored in quart jars.

Disappointed Fans Down on Tribesmen

Now They Wonder If Indians Pack Enough Steam To Keep From Losing Runner-up Position.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

CLEVELAND and a pennant are not as closely associated in the baseball talk heard around the street corners these days as they were several weeks ago. It is very evident that the three defeats administered by the Rampaging Yankees have dampened the enthusiasm of the Tribe's followers.

Mickey Cochrane

If the Indians can stage a comeback and crown their achievements with a pennant . . . well, everything will be fine and dandy, but right now it appears that Mansfield fans will be satisfied with a "place" finish. And it is also evident that they are not so sure that the Indians can successfully defend their current position against the threatening Red Sox.

The crack-up at the plate appears to be the reason for their complete collapse against the Yankees. This ailment is only temporary, of course, but it has been costly, as Oscar Vitt agrees.

Jeff Heath's hitting and Mel Harder's pitching have been the only bright spots in recent Cleveland performances, and they alone cannot hold the tribe among the elite. There is no fear that Johnny Allen will not regain his old-time form, but Bob Feller is an uncertainty, and his failure to win consistently after a good start has injured the tribal hopes materially.

* * * * *

Ousted Cochrane Believed Victim of Raw Deal.

MICKEY COCHRANE'S dismissal as manager of the Detroit Tigers has resulted in more comment than usually is the case when a pilot is fired. Cochrane's success and popularity are the reasons for this, of course.

"Black Mike" has been successful as a pilot, and he has probably done more for baseball in Detroit than any other man. He won two championships and guided runners-up twice, and the can is tied to him in his first year as a loser.

The inability of the Tigers to win this year cannot be blamed on his lack of managerial skill. Misfortune has trailed the Tigers since the season got under way, and Mickey cannot be held responsible for these unfortunate circumstances.

Perhaps the real reason for the dismissal of Cochrane will never be known, but Owner Briggs is finding it difficult to explain that he was released because of the "good of the team."

From what we are able to gather from the reports, Mickey was just the victim of a raw deal in which his ability as a pilot had no bearing. And, furthermore, we believe the first to realize Mickey's value to the Tigers will be the owner, whose knowledge of baseball fails to go beyond the box office, we understand.

Pitching Battles Loom in Sunday's Games.

PITCHING featured the opening round games in the district softball tournament at League park Sunday as expected. The twirling was the most magnificent ever witnessed in a tournament day, and the possibility of a continuation of the spectacular mound work in the remaining games should pack League park next Sunday.

The most brilliant bits of pitching were written by Ben Fried of the DeLuxe Cabs, who struck out 18 as he allowed only one hit, and Stiegman of the Hartman Electrics, who chalked up a pair of victories, but none of the pitchers fared exactly badly. Jim Fullager was again the master of the Beehers-Dees foe, and Millisor of Marion stopped his opponents without difficulty.

Sunday's program should be the most attractive thing ever staged in this city in a softball way. The opening semi-final game between the DeLuxe Cabs and Hartman Electrics will pit Fried against Stiegman, with Fullager and Millisor colliding in the other tilt featuring the Beers and Marion.

Mansfield fans Sunday saw all of the outstanding moundsmen in the district in action except Mike Bodner, and it was not the Ashland star's fault that he did not work. A member of the Faultless Rubbers, Bodner was not started because the Ashland club figured it had a set-up in the Hartman Electrics, and wanted to save him for the second game to follow. But the Electrics proved otherwise, and so Bodner made a useless trip to Mansfield.

Central Ohio League About Ready to Fold.

WHETHER the Central Ohio semi-pro league in which Mansfield is represented by the American Legion, will finish the season is questionable. Since the league was reorganized after the resignation of Joe Donnelly as president, it has operated on a hit-and-miss basis, and there is fear today that it will fold.

The Legionnaires were scheduled to play at Coshocton Sunday, but the game was called off when Coshocton refused to guarantee the Mansfield club the fee that is required by league rules. As the guarantee is meager enough without reduction, the Legionnaires can hardly be blamed for not making the trip.

THERE was little change in the three-way battle for first place in the News-Journal Class A golf league at Possum Run yesterday.

The front-running Richland Printers retained their two-point lead over the DeLuxe Cabs, while the Goldsmith Clothiers crept within one point of the runner-up position.

The Printers and Cabs hung up identical 4 to 1 victories over the Yuncker Sports and Big Three Beers, respectively, while the Goldsmith club blanked the Matthes Clothiers, 5 to 0.

Two extra hole matches featured the victories registered by the Printers and Cabs. Harry Schlegel of the leaders was forced to go three extra holes to defeat Kleshinski, and Lawrence Deley of the Cabs went the same distance to outpoint Paul Jesson.

The only match lost by the Printers was suffered by Ted Etzel, who bowed to Dr. D. M. Leuthner. Pete Linster and Oscar Frantz paced the Richland club with 39's, while Al Kushin was low for the defeated Sports with a 38, which tied five others for medal honors.

Deley rolled out a 38 and Vin Malaska and Bob Dillon accounted for 39's as the DeLuxe foursome whipped the Beers. Jesson had a 38 for the Big Three, but Fay Strome won its lone point.

Pete Zeides and Bob Moorhead blasted out 38's as the Goldsmith club walloped the Matthes swingers. Carl Kushin had a 38 for the losers.

Hank Greenberg Can Ease September Strain By Big Home Run Production During August

By DILLON GRAHAM
(AP Feature Service Writer)

AUGUST may well be the pivotal month for Hank Greenberg in his pursuit of Babe Ruth's eleven-year-old record of 60 home runs.

"Wait until he reaches that September stretch," cry those who doubt Hank's ability to surpass the Ruthian record. They recall the torrid finishing drive Ruth maintained in that final hot month of 1927, when he poled out 17 homers.

But if Hankus Pankus continues in August the pace he set in July—when he walloped 15—he won't have to do much worrying about September. As he moved into August, Hank had 37. Another 15 for August (and it's not beyond him) and Greenberg would strike that September stretch with 53 4-base clouts.

He'd be almost a cinch then to lambast the eight more necessary to establish a new mark.

Many others have tried in vain to equal Babe's tremendous total.

Jimmy Foxx came closest. He banged out 58 in 1932.

Hack Wilson of the Cubs hit 56 in 1930.

Lou Gehrig hit 49 and Joe DiMaggia 46.

But none was in as good a strategical spot to better Ruth's figure as is the big Detroit first baseman.

On Aug. 1, Greenberg was 20 games in front of Ruth's pace. Greenberg hit his 37th home run in his 92d game. Ruth didn't get No. 37 until his 113th game on August 16.

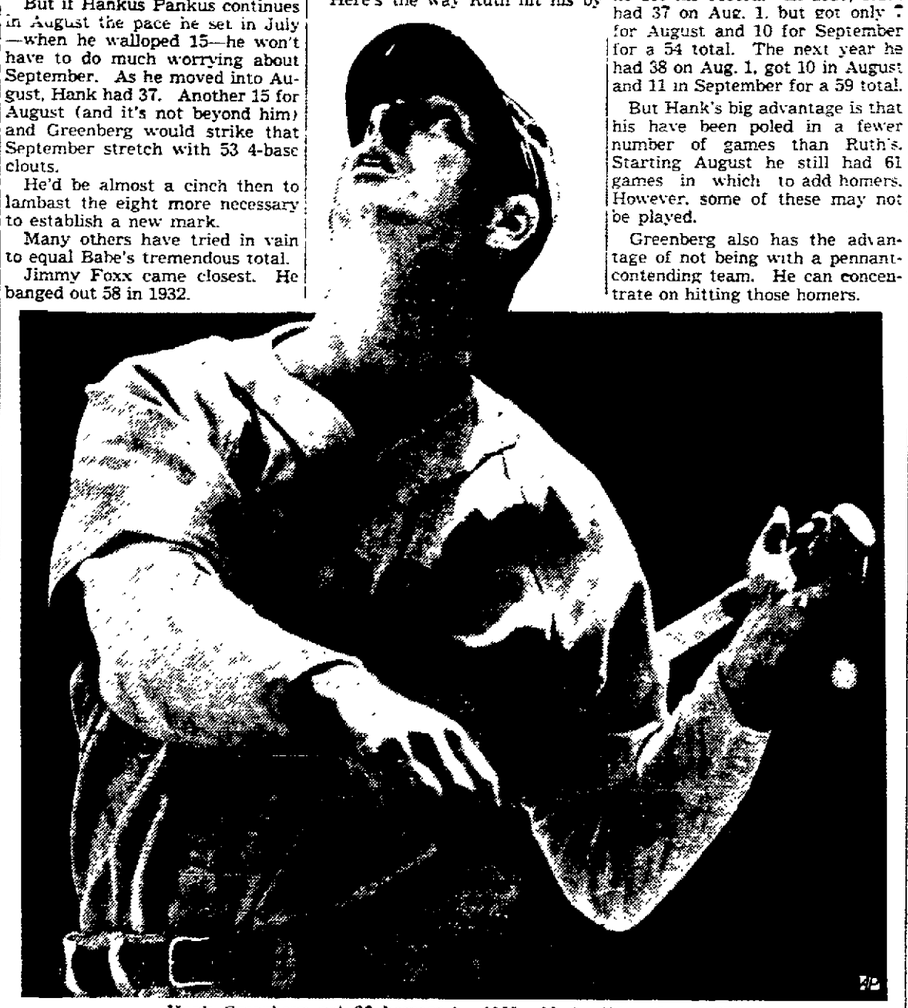
Month	Ruth	Greenberg
April	4	3
May	12	9
June	9	10
July	9	15
August	9	?
September	17	?

Both in 1920 and 1921 Ruth turned into August with more homers than he had in 1927, when he set his record. In 1920, Ruth had 37 on Aug. 1, but got only 7 for August and 10 for September for a 54 total. The next year he had 38 on Aug. 1, got 10 in August and 11 in September for a 59 total.

But Hank's big advantage is that his have been poled in a fewer number of games than Ruth's. Starting August he still had 61 games in which to add homers. However, some of these may not be played.

Greenberg also has the advantage of not being with a pennant-contending team. He can concentrate on hitting those homers.



Hank Greenberg got 26 homers in 1936; 36 in '35; 40 in '37.

Ambers Works, Henry Rests

Lou Looks Classy In Final Workout for Battle.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Lou Ambers, the lightweight champion, does not look or talk like the pop-over he is supposed to be for Henry Armstrong tomorrow night at the Polo Grounds.

In his final training spasm yesterday, the 135-pound king looked as tough as a smoked boot and his conversation all was to the effect that he knew exactly how to take care of the fierce little colored champ.

The average man wouldn't like to face Armstrong with a baseball bat, yet Ambers talks like he can't wait to take a smack at the fireball who has dethroned the featherweight and welterweight champions in the last nine months.

While Armstrong loafed in his camp, Ambers fought a fast two rounds with Slugger White and did four rounds of other assorted work.

Some of the visiting experts who have been picking Armstrong to win by a knockout wavered a little after watching Lou.

Guldahl, Snead Post 68's Over Oakwood

CLEVELAND —(INS)— The early birds in a field composed of the country's greatest professional and amateur golfers today teed off on a carefully prepared Oakwood Country club course in practice rounds for the $10,000 Cleveland open, which starts Thursday.

Oakwood, a deceptive course with narrow fairways and small, closely-trapped greens, is in as fine shape as it has ever been. Recent rains have aided the watering system in making the fairways soft and green and the rough thick and heavy.

The pros who arrived in time to play yesterday toured the layout in practice and only a few reported scores. All spoke of the ease with which golf balls could sail out of bounds on the first nine, which skirts the club property. On several holes there is not more than ten feet of rough between the fairway and out of bounds.

The local boys, familiar with the layout, have been predicting that a good prevailing west wind would spell high scores for many of the long hitters because of out-of-bounds penalties.

Henry Picard, the Hershey, Pa., master, was among the entrants playing the course yesterday. He toured with Billie Burke, 1931 national open champion and pro at Country Club here. Neither posted scores, but caddies reported both played tournament golf and stayed out of trouble most of the time.

Slammin' Sammy Snead, the West Virginia wonder, had a 35-33-68', and Open Champion Ralph Guldahl equalled him with a 33-35-68.

The DeLuxe Cabs and Kooler Keg Beers of Crestline will renew their rivalry at League park at 6 p. m. Wednesday. The two teams played to a 4 to 4 tie in a game halted by darkness at Liberty park a week ago.

Dick Treisch will go to the hillock for the Cabs, with Colonel Brown likely to oppose him.

Pytlak Paired With Feller

ST LOUIS—(AP)—The Bob Feller-Rollie Hemsley battery was broken up today by Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians who said, "I'm just playing the percentages."

Vitt, announcing that Frankie Pytlak would catch Feller in the first game of today's double-header with the Browns said: "Feller hasn't had any success with Rollie lately and Earl Whitehill has. Maybe it's just coincidence, but until I find out I've got to be guided by past performances."

The Tribe and Browns were rained out yesterday after one inning. Vitt shook up his lineup, hoping to snap Cleveland out of its batting slump.

He put Moose Solters in right field in place of Bruce Campbell and elevated Earl Averill to second place in the batting order. John Kroner was a first base because Hal Trosky was limping from an injury received Sunday. Sammy Hale returned to second base.

Miller of Shelby Wins Post On Star Team to Oppose Rams

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Thirty-five football players were named for today for the all-star Ohio collegiate squad which will oppose the Cleveland Rams in a charity game here Sept. 2.

Ohio Trotter Goshen Choice

GOSHEN N. Y.—(U.P.)—Eleven three-year-olds are expected to start in tomorrow's 12th renewal of the Hambletonian stakes, world's blue ribbon event for trotting horses.

The deadline for posting the $500 starting fee was today when Champlain, Dale Hanover, Earl's Mr. Will, Earl's Princess Martha, Long Key, McLin, Professor, Prohibitor, Royal Spencer, Sun Dial and The Duchess are expected to be named for the $40,000 feature on good time track here. Other possible starters include Esther Mite and Scovere.

The favorite was Long Key, owned by E. J. Merkle of Columbus, O., which will be driven by Ben White, only driver to win the Hambletonian stake more than once.

Prospect, Johns Continue In Tie For First Place

Valentinemen Turn Back Sportsmen, 10 to 4, While First Half Champs Trim Liberty, 6 to 2.

PROSPECT PARK served notice on its rivals that it is still very much in the City Class A softball league race.

The Prospectors, who suffered their first defeat in the second half last week, came back yesterday to defeat the Richland Fish & Game Association club of North park, 10 to 4, on the losers' diamond.

Prospect tallied five times in the first of the fifth to take a lead the Sportsmen never threatened.

Al Stickler was on the mound for Prospect, and gave the Sportsmen only two runs after the first frame. He scattered eight hits.

Manager John Valentine's men were the first to score in the first of the opening inning on Judy's single, an error and Stickler's long fly. North park went ahead in its half of the second first when Balbaugh singled. Stout tripled and Henrich singled.

Prospect knotted the count in the second when the first of four hits by Thoma sent Beal across the plate. Stickler gave Prospect a lead it never lost when he hit for the circuit in the fourth.

The winners knocked Gettles out of the box in the fifth when they tallied five times. Garver relieved him, and pitched scoreless ball until the ninth. Weber's home run featured Prospect's big inning.

Thoma's single, a couple of walks and a pair of flys gave Prospect its final runs in two runs in the ninth.

Balbaugh singled home a North park run in the fifth and Frantz' double gave the Sportsmen their final tally in the last of the ninth.

A feature of the game was Weber's fielding around shortstop for Prospect.

Fullager Scatters 10 Hits to Win.

LIBERTY PARK was not capable of making it two in a row over the leaders yesterday.

The Liberty representatives stopped Prospect's winning streak last week, but were unable to do anything with Jimmy Fullager's slants yesterday.

It is true that Liberty got enough hits to win the ball game, 10 in all, but the veteran Fullager was their master in the pinches. He gave up one run in the fifth and other in the eighth as Johns Park took a 6 to 2 decision on its home field.

The first half champions never trailed after registering two runs in the second on two singles and Mahoney's double. Liberty cut the lead to a run in the fifth, but the Johnnies came back in the last half with two more on a walk.

Johns Park scored again in the seventh and eighth to put the game on ice.

The Johnnies found Musille and Wentz, who shared the pitching duties for the Liberty team, for 12 hits, with Mahoney leading the way with three. Vogel got three for the losers.

Kuelling's defensive play in right field for Liberty Park was a feature of the game.

LETS CONTRACT FOR FIRE CABLE ON HIGH BID

City Board Buys Material for Extending Signal System From Mansfield Firm.

The city board of control today awarded to the Hartman-Spreng company of Mansfield the contract for supplying the city with 4,100 feet of various size sheathed cable to be used in extending the fire and police underground signal system.

The contract, which calls for the expenditure of $1,757.92, was one of three identical bids. Five other proposals, while all lower, were rejected because of failure to meet specifications, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said

Specifications call for delivery of 1,750 feet of 48 conductor No. 14, solid tinned copper cable; approximately 400 feet of 24 conductor No 14 cable, all lead sheathed; and 1,600 feet of seven conductor, No 10, solid copper, nonmetallic underground cable with a working pressure of 600 volts, 60 cycle.

The two other firms with bids identical to that of the Hartman-Spreng company were the Graybar Electric company, Cleveland and the Simplex Wire and Cable company, Cleveland.

The other bidders were the National Electric company, Mansfield, $1 452 90; Graybar Electric company, Mansfield $1 560 91; Wagner Hardware Mansfield, $1.-622 20; Martin Hardware company, Mansfield, $1,593.94, and the Phelps-Dodge Copper corporation, New York City, $1,560.91.

Ford Acts As 'Guide' For 2 Mansfield Youngsters

Auto Magnate Poses for Pictures With Boys and Takes Party Through Historic McGuffey Home.

Two young Mansfield boys have vacation pictures for their scrap books thas will make them the envy of their classmates when school opens—snapshots of themselves and one of the world's richest men and greatest industrialists, Henry Ford.

The two boys are Richard Koozer, 10, 551 Springmill street, and Robert Smith, 13, 548 Springmill. The pictures were taken before the famous McGuffey cabin in Word's Greenfield Village, as the industrialist chatted with the Mansfield boys.

A party of Mansfielders, including Richard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Koozer, and Mrs. E. M. Benson and Miss Edythe Benson, 51 Reed street, motored to Dearborn several days ago and went out to the Edison Institute and Museum and the Greenfield Village which houses Ford's famous collection of early Americana.

Industrialist Greets Them.

As the party approached the McGuffey cabin in which an always-burning fire in the fireplace is Ford's memorial to the early educator, they saw a slight, white-haired man alight from a car and recognized the industrialist. He smiled pleasantly, asked them if they were enjoying their visit to the village and offered to take them into the McGuffey home, which is closed to the public.

When asked if he would pose with the boys for several pictures he not only consented but seemed to enjoy it as much as the boys, they said.

When he learned that they were from Mansfield, Ford remarked that he knew of Mansfield because the Ford company had bought considerable sheet steel from the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company

Before the party left the village, the industrialist took them to his car. The front seats are upholstered in leather to enable him to get in and out more easily He explained that he keeps a car only about two weeks and tries out all the new models as new features and conveniences are added.

One of the most interesting phases of the meeting between Ford and young Smith was that the latter's grandfather, William H. Smith, with whom he lives, had purchased the third gasoline engine "buggy" which the then unknown Henry Ford made.

Mr. Smith resided in Flint and the car was manufactured in an old building in Detroit. It was to be ready for him on a Saturday, but when he arrived in the latter city, Mr. Ford told him he couldn't complete it until Monday at the earliest, and invited Mr. Smith to stay with him and Mrs Ford over the week-end rather than make the 65-mile trip again.

The car cost $325 and was a little open roadster of the "buggy" type, with an open box bed in the rear. It had a buggy top and was equipped with carbon lights. Mr. Smith had the car when he moved to Mansfield in 1918 but has since disposed of it.

The two boys sent prints of the pictures to Ford a few days ago.

THEATER

SERIAL pictures, which bring better box office returns than many so-called "epics," are in a new ascendency, one company alone starting three new ones, making a total of seven for that company. The success of such serials as "Charlie Chan," "The Jones Family" and "Judge Hardy's Family" brought on the "Mr. Moto" serial and others. Twentieth Century-Fox, which fathers the Chan and Moto serials, has launched four new ones. "Camera Daredevils," with Brian Donlevy and Wally Vernon, will have cameramen for its leading characters; "Big Town Girls" and "Roving Reporters" are adventure stories of modern life, and then there will be a sports series Michael Whalen and Chic Chandler have the top roles in "Roving Reporters." The future of Charlie Chan serials is up in the air since the death of Warner Oland, as it would be difficult for the public to accept another player in the role with which Oland has been identified for eight years.

Taylor At Ohio.

In spite of an old story, "The Crowd Roars" is one of the better pictures of the month, with an excellent cast and a suspense build-up that keeps the audience on the edge of its seat. Robert Taylor holds the center of the action as the prize fighter who accidentally kills the best friend he ever had. Sharing acting honors with him is Frank Morgan as the disreputable and drunken father, and Lionel Stander as the fighter's trainer. William Gargan, Maureen O'Sullivan and Edward Arnold add considerable to the entertainment value of the film. The action begins with a flash of choir boys and ends the same way, the story between being that of a small choir boy with a penchant for fighting. The final shot is of his wedding.

* * *

Psychology and Comedy.

Long famous for his portrayals of ruthless criminals, Edward G. Robinson has a role in his new picture, "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," in which he demonstrates the high order of his ability by enacting an engrossingly complex character—a Park avenue doctor who spends his days in the practice of medicine and his nights in the practice of crime. Criminal psychology is cleverly blended with comedy. The picture adheres faithfully to the stage success. Humphrey Bogart is the chief player in support of Robinson and who eventually leads the doctor to commit murder. Other players in this Madison attraction are Claire Trevor, Allen Jenkins and Donald Crisp.

* * *

Familiar Names.

Although it is an English picture, "The Variety Girls," at the Majestic, has several names that are familiar to American movie goers It has blond Patricia Ellis, Hollywood star, in the leading role; it is an Alexander Korda production, and the director is Thornton Freeland who directed "Flying Down to Rio" and "Whoopee" Jack Hulbert, little known in America, is the Fred Astaire of England. Miss Ellis sings several songs in this musical comedy. "Paradise for Two" and "Kiss Me Goodnight." Also on the bill is a re-issue of "Treasure Island" with Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper and Lionel Barrymore.

Reunion on New Year.

The story of six Broadway chorus girls who part on New Year's eve and sign an agreement to meet again for reunion a year from that night, is told in "Walking Down Broadway," which the Ritz shows Wednesday and Thursday. Tragedy overtakes three of them and the other three work out their destinies before the year rolls around. The girls are Phyllis Brooks, Claire Trevor, Lynn Bari, Dixie Dunbar, Leah Ray and Jane Regan, while the men in their lives are Michael Whalen, Tom Beck, Douglas Fowley, Walter Woolf King and Jed Prouty. Walter Wanger's "52nd Street," with Ian Hunter, Pat Paterson, Leo Carillo, Ella Logan, Sid Silvers and Zasu Pitts is the second feature.

Another Vote for Barkley

Victorious in his fight with Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Kentucky's primary, Senator Alben W. Barkley now opposes John P Haswell, Hardinsburg attorney and Republican winner, in November. Barkley who was supported by the president in the torrid Kentucky race, is pictured as he cast his vote at Paducah, his home city.

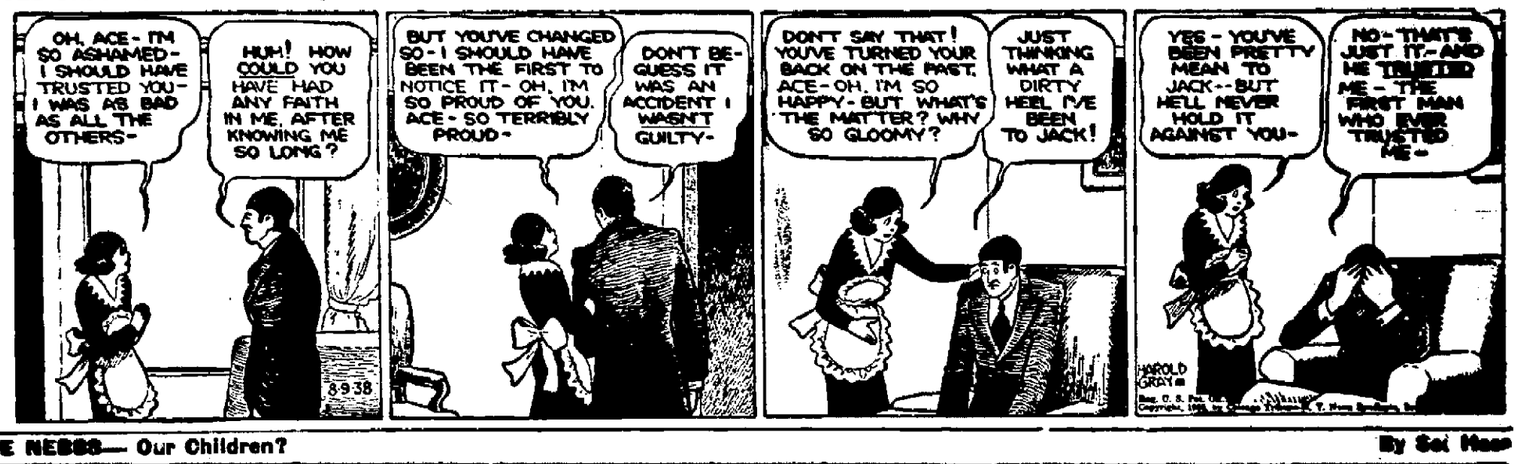
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Introspection By Harold Gray



OH, ACE - I'M SO ASHAMED - I SHOULD HAVE TRUSTED YOU - I WAS AS BAD AS ALL THE OTHERS -
HUH! HOW COULD YOU HAVE HAD ANY FAITH IN ME, AFTER KNOWING ME SO LONG?
8-9-38
BUT YOU'VE CHANGED SO - I SHOULD HAVE BEEN THE FIRST TO NOTICE IT - OH, I'M SO PROUD OF YOU, ACE - SO TERRIBLY PROUD -
DON'T BE-GUESS IT WAS AN ACCIDENT I WASN'T GUILTY-
DON'T SAY THAT! YOU'VE TURNED YOUR BACK ON THE PAST, ACE - OH, I'M SO HAPPY - BUT WHAT'S THE MATTER? WHY SO GLOOMY?
JUST THINKING WHAT A DIRTY HEEL I'VE BEEN TO JACK!
YES - YOU'VE BEEN PRETTY MEAN TO JACK - BUT HELL NEVER HOLD IT AGAINST YOU -
NO - THAT'S JUST IT - AND HE TRUSTED ME - THE FIRST MAN WHO EVER TRUSTED ME -
HAROLD GRAY

THE NEBBS—Our Children? By Sol Hess

STEVE, I REALLY MUST GO HOME TO MY CHILDREN. I'VE BEEN AWAY NOW A WEEK LONGER THAN I EXPECTED TO STAY
I'M GRATEFUL FOR THAT WEEK, NELLIE. IT WAS THE FINEST WEEK OF MY LIFE - I CAN'T LET YOU GO, NELLIE, UNTIL WE HAVE A BETTER UNDER-STANDING
I'LL TELL YOU WHAT YOU DO - YOU BRING THE CHILDREN DOWN HERE AND LET ME SNEAK INTO THEIR HEARTS BEFORE YOU TELL THEM ABOUT US

YOU FOUND $790!! WOW! LADY, I'M GLAD TO KNOW YOU!
BUT, I HAVEN'T LOCATED THE OWNER YET, DAN.
THEY HAVEN'T ADVERTISED FOR IT, AT ALL! — ISN'T THAT STRANGE?
CERTAINLY IS! MUST BE THE WORK OF SOME GOOD FAIRY!
AND, POSSESSION IS NINE POINTS OF THE LAW, ISN'T IT?
OH, I'M GOING TO ADVERTISE IT, MYSELF — I'D NEVER FEEL RIGHT ABOUT THAT MONEY — I'D ALWAYS HAVE A ---
--FEELING THE OWNER WOULD SHOW UP SOME TIME — PROVE IT WAS HIS —AFTER I'D SPENT IT
THE PAMELA POTTER CONSCIENCE —WHAT!
AND WE GUESS THAT'S RIGHT, DAN!

TAILSPIN TOMMY—The Jump! By Hal Forrest

BETTY-LOU IS ABOUT TO MAKE A WORLD'S RECORD PARACHUTE JUMP AT THE MIAMI AIR RACES. FROM AN ALTITUDE OF TWENTY THOUSAND FEET SHE WILL BAIL OUT, FALLING 17,000 FEET, BEFORE PULLING THE RIP CORD. ON THE WAY DOWN SHE WILL OPEN A SACK OF FLOUR TO MARK HER DOWNWARD PATH, FOR THE SPECTATORS BELOW.
THAT'S THE SIGNAL..WE'VE REACHED OUR CEILING..
HOPE MARTIN ALLOWED FOR WIND DRIFT!
BUT A SUDDEN DOWNDRAFT CAUSES THE SHIP TO TAKE A STEEP DROP. BETTY'S HEAD STRIKES A FIN...
RENDERED UNCONSCIOUS BY THE BLOW, BETTY-LOU FALLS LIMPLY DOWNWARD AT TERRIFIC SPEED!

FRISKY GANDER

It's 40 Years Old and Still Willing To Do Battle.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(AP)—J. E. Chessborough has a gander on his farm that is 40 years old, is still as frisky as a kitten and picks frequent fights with the chickens and other geese.

The venerable gander's sire lived to be 50 years old, Chessborough says, and his mother lived to be 42 or 43.

LEADERS LOSE 1 TO 2 POINTS IN WEAK MART

Growing Fear Over Far East Situation Reflected in Stock Exchange.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Growing apprehension over the international situation brought a weak tone to the stock market today in a continuation of yesterday's decline.

Leaders lost 1 to 2 points after a heavy opening while declines in the higher-priced section ran to 4 points in Owens Illinois Glass.

Steels were among the leaders in the decline. U. S. Steel was down a point in the early dealings and extended its loss later. Bethlehem, Youngstown and National lost as much.

Chrysler was a late opener, starting down over a point on 3,000 shares. It extended this to 2 points by the middle of the forenoon. General Motors, one of the strong spots in recent sessions, lost a point.

U. S. Smelting slipped 2 points but other gold stocks improved on the new hoarding rush in London and rise in the British gold price to the highest level in more than a year.

Rails weakened except for Union Pacific, which equalled its 1938 high on a fractional advance

Phelps Dodge slumped 2 points in a weak market for the coppers. The stock market had been the strongest member of its group in the last few days.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Lodge Convenes—A meeting of the Modern Woodmen of America is set for 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Eagles hall.

Director Meet—The monthly meeting of the Friendly House board of directors will be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at the settlement.

Holds Festival—An ice cream festival will be held on the Olivesburg M. E. church lawn Thursday evening. Music will be furnished by the Olivesburg grange.

Auto Looted—Daniel Stehle, 40 High street, told police last night that his car was broken into while parked on North Walnut street and clothing valued at $21 taken.

Police Meet—A meeting of the Police Recreation club will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow in the municipal court room. Patrolman George Yoakum, president, announced today.

Postpone Rehearsal—A rehearsal of the Prospect Park band scheduled for tonight has been postponed until 8 p. m. next Tuesday, due to today's primaries Frank Gfrer, director, announced today.

Faces Charge—P. W. Bishop, Roseland, will face Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court tomorrow on a charge of careless and reckless driving. Bishop was arrested on West Sixth street yesterday by Patrolman C. W. Kyler who charged that he was driving 50 miles an hour in a 35-mile-an-hour zone and that he had run through a stop sign at North Mulberry street.

ied to be done by the state highway department.

"We find further that state automobiles are used by employes for personal use and recommend that the state highway patrol investigate movements of state highway automobiles. We order that automobiles and trucks should leave the state highway premises on state highway business only.

"That the section of law pertaining to political activity of civil service employes be posted in conspicuous places on the premises by the state highway department in Ashland county and that civil service employes familarize themselves with the law."

In dismissing the jury after the longest session in the county in 12 years, Judge C. C. Chapman said that 25 or 30 highway workers had called him to thank him for summoning the jury. Judge Chapman thanked the jury in his behalf and added that political shakedown had been stopped by the jury investigation.

Election Ruling.

Meanwhile, an election ruling affecting Ashland county was received from William J. Kennedy, secretary of state. The ruling arose from a suit filed by a CCC enrolee to gain permission to vote. The suit, filed in common pleas court, has not been decided, and Kennedy instructed election officials to enforce his ruling, which said:

"Under no circumstances can a resident of a CCC camp vote in Ashland county unless he was a resident of Ashland county prior to the time of his coming to camp."

HEADS DAYTON U.

LEADERS LOSE 1 TO 2 POINTS IN WEAK MART

Growing Fear Over Far East Situation Reflected in Stock Exchange.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Growing apprehension over the international situation brought a weak tone to the stock market today in a continuation of yesterday's decline.

Leaders lost 1 to 2 points after a heavy opening while declines in the higher-priced section ran to 4 points in Owens Illinois Glass.

Steels were among the leaders in the decline. U. S. Steel was down a point in the early dealings and extended its loss later Bethlehem, Youngstown and National lost as much

Chrysler was a late opener, starting down over a point on 3,000 shares. It extended this to 2 points by the middle of the forenoon. General Motors, one of the strong spots in recent sessions, lost a point.

U. S Smelting slipped 2 points but other gold stocks improved on the new hoarding rush in London and rise in the British gold price to the highest level in more than a year.

Rails weakened except for Union Pacific, which equalled its 1938 high on a fractional advance

Phelps Dodge slumped 2 points in a weak market for the coppers The stock market had been the strongest member of its group in the last few days.

ied to be done by the state highway department

"We find further that state automobiles are used by employes for personal use and recommend that the state highway patrol investigate movements of state highway automobiles. We order that automobiles and trucks should leave the state highway premises on state highway business only

"That the section of law pertaining to political activity of civil service employes be posted in conspicuous places on the premises by the state highway department in Ashland county and that civil service employes familarize themselves with the law."

In dismissing the jury after the longest session in the county in 12 years, Judge C C Chapman said that 25 or 30 highway workers had called him to thank him for summoning the jury. Judge Chapman thanked the jury in his behalf and added that political shakedown had been stopped by the jury investigation

Election Ruling.

Meanwhile, an election ruling affecting Ashland county was received from William J Kennedy, secretary of state The ruling arose from a suit filed by a CCC enrolee to gain permission to vote. The suit, filed in common pleas court, has not been decided, and Kennedy instructed election officials to enforce his ruling, which said.

"Under no circumstances can a resident of a CCC camp vote in Ashland county unless he was a resident of Ashland county prior to the time of his coming to camp" tion as representative to the Ohio general assembly, and between L. Max Daugherty and Harry H. Maxwell seeking the Republican nomination for the same post.

A spirited contest between Roy B. Gardner, Earl A. McFarland and Carl R. Harding for membership on the state Republican central committee also is on the ballot.

3 Without Opposition.

Entering the November general election sans a primary battle are C. L. Mitchell, incumbent county commissioner, and Norman L. Wolfe incumbent county auditor, both Democrats; and John C. Friday, unopposed for the Republican nomination as county commissioner.

Special questions and issues being voted upon in the county besides the school bond issue and separate relief levies in Mansfield and Madison township, include:

A $49,000 bond issue for the Butler school district for construction of a new high school; a $55,000 waterworks bond issue and renewal of a one-mill levy for operating purposes in Shelby.

Election booths opened at 6:30 a. m. throughout the county this morning and polls will be closed at 6:30 p. m. Counting of ballots will be started immediately and it was indicated that first returns will be reported soon after 8 p. m.

There were no serious election day disorders reported in the state and in Mansfield election board attaches said there was nothing beyond routine activity here, with no complaints of a serious nature.

Heaviest in Fifth Ward.

Heaviest voting in the 20 precincts canvassed in the city at noon was under way in the heavily Democratic Fifth ward.

In Precinct B of that ward 75 Democrats had voted and 15 Republicans had marked their ballots. Precinct H of the Sixth ward reported a vote of 65 with 50 Democrats over 15 Republicans.

Precincts canvassed after four hours of voting, the estimated registration for each and the Democratic and Republican vote given separate, are:

Kennedy Checks Vote Irregularities.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— As Ohio voters flocked to the polls to select their choices for state and congressional offices reports filtered into the secretary of states office of balloting irregularities which Secretary of State William J. Kennedy said he would personally investigate.

A general complaint was received from Franklin county precincts that ballots were being handed to the voters unfolded and turned over to precinct judges unfolded. This procedure made it possible to ascertain the voter's choice, the complaint said.

From two Columbus precincts came the report that stubs bearing the number corresponding with the voter's name on the election list were not being torn from the ballots.

This would make it possible Kennedy said, to ascertain how a person voted through a later checkup.

In another Columbus precinct the first four voters were given both Republican and Democratic ballots and voted on both. The ballots were voided and election clerks were instructed to give only one ballot to a voter

Voters were being challenged at Celina, the board of elections informed Kennedy by telegram because they voted differently in other elections according to the wire Kennedy told the board that challenging for this reason was illegal and ordered the practice stopped.

Kennedy instructed the board of elections in Ashland county that "under no circumstances can a resident from the CCC camp in Ashland county vote unless he was a resident of the county prior to becoming a member of the camp

DONAHEY COMES OUT FOR SAWYER

Announces He Has Voted for Cincinnatian, Hopes He Will Be Nominated.

I have already cast my vote for Charles Sawyer by absent voter's ballot. I hope that Mr. Sawyer will be nominated."

There was no contest for the Republican nomination for governor. John W. Bricker, the party's 1936 nominee, was unopposed.

U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley, loyal to the New Deal and favored by President Roosevelt, faced the first hurdle in his race for re-election for a second term. He was opposed in today's primary by George White of Marietta, two-term former governor.

More exciting because of lively campaigning of the two candidates was the contest for the Republican senatorial nomination, wherein Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, son of the late president and chief justice, was opposed by Judge Arthur H. Day of the Ohio supreme court. Theirs has been in many ways the most interesting battle of the pre-primary campaign.

New Deal Cuts Slight Figure In Nebraska.

(By International News Service)

LINCOLN, Neb. — The New Deal cut only a small figure in Nebraska's primary today as the jobs of five congressmen and a slate of state officers were placed in the hands of the voters.

Four Democratic representatives were regarded as favorites in their bids for renomination and Rep. Karl Steffen (R) was unopposed in the third district where four Democrats were seeking the right to face him at the election in the fall.

Gov. Roy L. Cochran was likewise conceded the best chance to win the Democratic nomination in a campaign to succeed himself against four opponents.

Mrs. Caraway's Seat In Senate at Stake.

(By International News Service)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Mrs. Hattie Caraway, the only woman ever to be elected to the U. S. senate, carried the "friendly" blessing of President Roosevelt to the polls today in her bid for renomination.

The three-cornered campaign that failed to develop any New Deal issues centered around the president's reference to Mrs Caraway as a "very old friend of mine" when he spoke briefly in the state on his recent tour.

Accepted by many as a tacit endorsement of Mrs. Caraway's candidacy, the president's phrase was taken up by Rep. John L. McClellan, one of her opponents, who declared it held no significance. The third candidate in the field is J. Ross Venable. All endorsed administration policies.

WED IN SHELBY

Galion Couple Take Vows in Methodist Church.

SHELBY—In a quiet ceremony, Miss Mary Isabelle Foltz of Galion was united in marriage early Monday evening to Keith Baird of Galion, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baird of Plymouth township, in the First Methodist church.

Rev. W. W. Ralph performed the ceremony. Attending the couple were Miss Dorothy Nagelbush and William Auick, both of Galion.

A wedding dinner was served at the Joy Lou following the ceremony. The couple will make their home in Galion where Mr. Baird is assistant manager of the State theater. Miss Foltz is a graduate of Galion high school. Mr. Baird graduated from Shelby high school.

Shelby

Announcement of the coming marriage of Miss Margaret Cramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Skiles Cramer, to Robert E. Henderson of Willard was made recently at a party given by Mrs. Cramer and daughter, Florence, at their home. The marriage will be an event of Aug. 31.

About 20 members attended a picnic of the Otterbein guild of the United Brethren church held Monday night at Seltzer park.

Mrs. Glenn Baker will entertain the C. L. of C. society of the Most Pure Heart of Mary church today at 7:15 p. m. in her home, 183 West Main street.

The regular meeting of the Royal Neighbors lodge has been postponed from this week until Aug. 23, officials stated.

Harold Payne, president, and Mrs. Richard Shaw, secretary-treasurer, both of Shelby, were officers recently elected when the annual Gates family reunion was held at Seltzer park. Forty-one relatives attended the dinner.

The Lutheran church board will meet today at 8 p. m. in the parish house for a special session.

Plans for an ice cream party were completed Monday evening when the Epworth league of the First Methodist church held a special meeting at the home of Rev. W. W. Ralph on South Gamble street. The affair will be held Aug. 17 at the home of Gerald Boor, northwest of Shelby.

Members of the Jolly Fifteen club will meet at the home of Mrs. Leonard Morton on Williams court Thursday evening.

Members of the Young Men's class of the First Methodist church held at wiener roast at Seltzer park Monday night.

Plans for an outing Saturday of the United Youth association will be completed tonight when its council meets at the home of the president, Tom Kirkpatrick, on East Main street, at 7:15 o'clock.

Mrs. Charles Grubb will be hostess to the Do-Be-There club this evening at her home, 33 Second street.

A picnic will be held by the American Legion auxiliary Wednesday at the summer cottage of Mrs. John West at Chaska beach. Mrs. Edith Zeiters is in charge of the transportation.

CONTINUE CASE

SHELBY—Charges of driving while intoxicated against Fred Kaple of 14 Oak street were continued today for further investigation, Police Chief Leroy Coffey disclosed. Kaple was arrested by Patrolman William Ewalt over the week-end. Chief Coffey stated, when he was reported to have been driving on the wrong side of Mohican street. Kaple's car was held for bond.

GALION—Reports of the state American Legion convention at Cincinnati were given Monday night by three delegates from Scarbrough post, Fred Barr, M. J. Mosbacher and Leslie Crissinger, at the regular meeting of the post.

WED IN SINGLE RING CEREMONY

Katherine Reep, Thomas Horner Married Before Families at Catholic Church.

SHELBY — Miss Katherine Lucile Reep, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Reep, North Broadway avenue, was married to Thomas Ledow Horner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dow Horner, 161½ Church street, in a quiet ceremony early today in the Most Pure of Heart of Mary church.

Rev. Michael McFadden performed the single ring ceremony before immediate members of the families and friends. Miss Jeanne Reep of Shelby, the bride's sister, and Anthony Schadek, jr., of Mansfield, attended the couple. Lewis and Howard Letzer of this city were ushers. Nuptial music for the mass was sung by Miss Dorothy Gannaway of Mansfield.

Upon return from a motor trip to Florida, the couple will make their home in this city where Mr. Horner is employed by his father at Horner's Lunch.

MANSFIELD TO GO ON AIR TWICE SATURDAY EVE

WGAR Broadcasts From Park, Hillbilly Band on Network Program Over WLW.

For the first time in history, two radio programs, one of which will be a nation-wide hook-up, will emanate from Mansfield on the same night this week.

Saturday the weekly series of public square broadcasts by WGAR, Cleveland, saluting Ohio cities, will be broadcast from the bandstand in Central park at 6:30 p. m., while at 9 p. m. the first network program originating on a Mansfield stage will be presented from the Madison theater when the Renfro Valley Barn Dance sends out its regular Saturday night WLW program

Appears Here 2 Days.

The famous hillbilly group makes a two-day personal appearance at the Madison theater Friday and Saturday All the well known "folks" with the show, including Whitey Ford, known for his cheery "hello folks and howdy neighbors," the Coon Creek Girls' band, Ramblin' Red Foley, Aunt Idy and Little Clifford, Girls of the Golden West, Duke of Paducah, the Owen Sisters and Slim Miller's Cornecrackers, will appear here.

The Renfro Valley stage show will be presented afternoons and evenings during the two days.

On the WGAR program saluting Mansfield, Mayor Claude M Hunter will take the "mike" to extend official greetings over the air. Judge C. H Huston, president of the Chamber of Commerce, also will speak.

Musical selections by Edith Fletcher Jameson and her women's chorus and Leo Hans, tenor, will feature the half hour program.

LOW BIDDER

Mansfield Firm Submits Estimate of $1,005 on Culvert Project.

George B Herring and Son, Mansfield contractors, have been announced as the low bidders on a culvert improvement project at the Windsor cut-off on route 42

They submitted a bid for $1,005, more than $200 under the state highway department's estimate of $1,274. The plans call for construction of a cement culvery for the route 42 cut-off on which work was started this week

LOSES SAVINGS TO SWINDLERS

McDonald, O., Man Robbed of $4,000 In Old, Old Game.

McDONALD, O.—(U.P.)—The entire life savings, totaling $4,000, of Jerry Simone, 25, was taken by two confidence men here after they accompanied him to church to pray for "divine guidance"

The swindlers gained Simone's confidence after several meetings during which they negotiated to buy his house. During the negotiations one of the swindlers said he was the sole heir to a $25,000 estate and that Simone was the honest person they had been seeking to distribute the money.

To show a sign of good faith they requested Simone to draw his $4,000 from a bank to add to the $25,000 The $25,000 proved to be a roll of paper covered by a $1 bill.

REALLY AGED

Pint-Sized Flask, Found In Cache, Bears 1802 Date.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex.—(AP)—A pint size flask of Napoleon brandy, dated 1802, was taken from a cache on the roof of an old building being torn down here. It was concealed in a crevice near a hole on the roof that apparently had been a lookout. Historians say the building was once Gen. Zachery Taylor's armory.

THE MANSFIELD NEWS AND MANSFIELD JOURNAL.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

The Mansfield News Founded by W. S. Cappeller, March 7, 1885.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES—By Mail: Richland and adjoining counties per year, $4.00; 6 months, $2.25; 3 months $1.25, (in advance), elsewhere in Ohio per year, $6.00; in U. S. outside of Ohio, per year, $7.00. By Carrier, per week, 15c.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 9, 1938.

It isn't the automobile that has reached the saturation point—only the parking space.

As nearly as can be learned, leisure has not yet become sufficiently oppressive to popularize the fifth suit in a bridge deck.

A legislator in New South Wales now proposes a stork derby with sweepstakes prizes to boost Australia's falling birth rate. They might have learned from that Toronto stork derby that quantity production of babies doesn't mean quality.

Good Record for Five Week-Ends.

MANSFIELD people are naturally distressed by the traffic crashes and other kinds of accidents that take lives in Ohio and other states.

But there must be a spread of responsibility to the people of each community and the need for carefulness must be stressed in each city and county, if there is to be material reduction in fatal accidents.

It is gratifying to note that in Mansfield and Richland county five consecutive week-ends have passed without a fatal, or even serious, traffic accident.

In fact, since the first of this year there has been only one fatal traffic accident in Mansfield city limits caused by collision of cars—and in that instance the driver of the car that caused the crash was admittedly under the influence of intoxicants

Escape for five week-ends without a serious automobile accident, however, should not be allowed to build up any feeling of false security on the part of motorists.

Reasonable safety in driving an automobile demands constant vigilance, extreme carefulness, reasonable speed and total sobriety.

Traffic law enforcement, continuous education in better driving and willing observance of traffic regulations by more motorists will do much to further reduce accidents in this city and vicinity.

America's Magic Formula.

THE great problem of Europe is obviously one of minorities. In Central Europe, the happy-hunting ground of ambitious meddlers, a lot of little racial and political groups are all jammed up together. And even within those small states are rival groups jammed up likewise, resenting their close proximity, hating their neighbors, apparently incapable of co-operation.

The United States has solved the problem. We have all those European nationalities and races over here, and often jammed tightly in spite of our roomy country, in special areas and cities. And they do get along together.

How do we work it? Very simply. We try to treat 'em all alike. We let 'em talk, we let 'em parade and we let 'em vote. We let 'em have their own languages and newspapers, as long as they learn our language, too. We give 'em all the same kind of education and turn 'em loose. And they fuse miraculously Soon they're all Americans. Well, nearly all! Anyway we get along wonderfully. Can they ever do that over there?

Extensive Strife.

THE 1936 cost of labor unrest was about $300,000,000. Last year strikes and other labor troubles ran up a national bill of five billion dollars.

The five billions was not spent in any constructive endeavor, with something of present and future use to show for it, but was lost wholly and forever.

The production authorities who made the estimates took into consideration economic waste due to idleness of workers, suppression of plant operation and other results of strikes.

It is evident that labor and capital should find some better and less expensive way of settling difficulties. Destruction of human morale during long idleness has not been counted in this. Nor the destructive effect on the human mind of bitterness and hate. Labor and capital are team-mates and its time more of them find it out and begin pulling together.

Vote-Buying Condemned.

SENATOR WALSH of the senate campaign expenditures committee predicts that the next congress will enact laws to check the use of government money or patronage in political campaigns. There should also be revision or better enforcement of the existing laws intended to check the exorbitant sums raised and spent privately.

Some outlay of money is essential to any campaign for public office to pay for a reasonable amount of publicity. It is no compliment to voters, however, that so many office-seekers believe they can win election merely by overwhelming the electorate with printed matter, publicity stunts, and the like.

Monopoly and Prices.

THE Temporary National Economic committee, consisting of members of congress and representatives of federal administrative agencies, is bringing out some interesting ideas. Among them is a new view of "monopoly."

This term in America has usually meant complete control of goods and prices in any field. The present view tends to ignore control of production and regards the price level as the important thing, holding that "monopolistic practices" consist mainly in keeping the prices of commodities or services "as high as the traffic will bear."

Where this is done, the prices tend to become higher than the traffic will bear. Then people stop buying, goods pile up, production slows down, stagnation grows, and we soon have want and depression.

The national remedy for monopoly, therefore, many experts now insist, and also the natural remedy for depression, is to cut prices as low as the traffic will bear.

We have had some industrial exemplars of this policy, chief among them perhaps being Henry Ford. He has repeatedly broken an ice-jam in the demand for automobiles by setting prices lower than current cost of production as figured by his experts. Then came volume-buying and a margin of profit.

When a person is more interested in his work than in how much he gets out of it, he generally gets more out of it.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—If you were a government clerk in Washington with an income of $2,000 a year, a sore appendix, a wife with an oncoming baby, and no rich uncle, probably you would join the Group Health Association if it promised to take care of your medical needs for $2.20 a month, $3.30 including family.

That situation in a nutshell, is what started the controversy between Washington's Group Health Association and the American Medical Association, a controversy which now is on the way toward a history-making anti-trust battle.

Group Health, counseled by the Twentieth Century fund, an endowed research organization, offered its members hospitalization and full medical and surgical care for this small monthly sum. It was altogether a voluntary organization but in a few months, 2,500 federal employes had joined. These, with their families, amounted to 6,000 potential patients.

The District (of Columbia) Medical Society, an AMA affiliate, promptly attacked the plan as leading toward the compulsory medical insurance systems in vogue in Germany and elsewhere in Europe. Such systems they denounced as undermining high standards of medical practice and likely to break down the close relationship of the physician and his patient.

Besides, here was a group with steady earnings snatched right out of the teeth of "regular" physicians, leaving them still with the burden of caring for the indigent without the sustaining aid of bill-paying patients.

* * *

Enter the Government.

THE Medical Society took steps. It threatened expulsion of the dozen or so physicians employed in the group health clinic here. Expulsion is truly serious for a physician. Further, the hospitals, following the pattern of the physicians practicing in them, declined to permit Group Health physicians to operate in them.

That was a sore handicap. To fulfill its obligations, Group Health had to call on "outside" physicians at regular fees for needed surgery for their members since G-H physicians could not have access to the hospitals.

In steps Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust prosecutions. In a public statement he charges the Medical Society action constitutes violation of the anti-trust laws by depriving certain physicians of a right to practice their profession.

Nonsense, replies American Medical Association. Can't the AMA decide who will be members, and can't hospitals decide who may have access to them?

* * *

Changes On Way.

WHAT menace do "regular" physicians see in Group Health?

1—They say such low fees can't support full medical coverage. It will necessitate ultimate government subsidy. Malingering patients will take advantage. In Germany, for instance, they say workers are "sick" twice as often and twice as long as in America because it is nice to loaf in a hospital.

2—Federal intervention means political control of medicine, a glary-eyed bugaboo to the medical profession.

What do Group-Healthers reply?

1—They are "delivering the goods" by providing the medical care promised—as far as the hospital restrictions will permit. By assuring ready access to "preventive" medicine, they hope to reduce the total illnesses. Clinical practice reduces lost time on the part of physicians, so makes them more efficient, permits them to handle more patients, at resulting lower costs. They seem to agree that perhaps present fees are low.

2—Group-Healthers, and many high ranking "regular" physicians are not panicked by federal intervention.

What's coming of it?

The District Medical Society points to steps taken here before the advent of Group Health, by which they sought to extend medical aid to the low paid. Admittedly they have become more active in that direction since.

Both in and out of Group Health it is freely admitted that radical changes in medical practice are on the way.

Timely Editorial

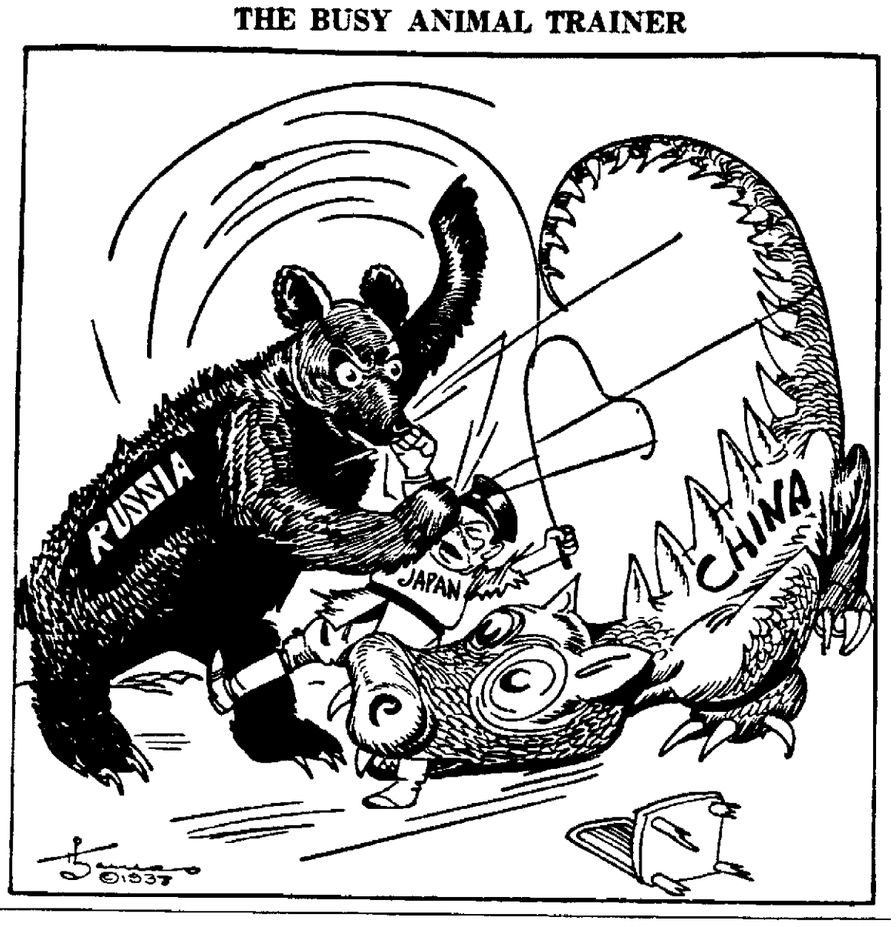
Their Pocketbooks Vote.

The report by the American Institute of Public Opinion that, generally speaking, property owners oppose President Roosevelt, and persons without real estate, stocks or bonds support him, merely furnishes additional proof that voters tend to cast their ballots in the light of what they consider to be their self-interest.

There have been elections, without doubt, in which some idealistic principle proved to be the determining factor, but taken by and large, elections here and abroad always have turned on what candidates and parties have promised to do for the people concretely in the way of bread and butter, security and happiness. The instinct for self-preservation is no more dominant in biology than in politics.

In the present political state of the country, it is obvious that if the present system based on private property is to continue without serious impairment, the majority of voters must be preserved as property owners.—Detroit News.

THE BUSY ANIMAL TRAINER



Conservative Democrats Gaining

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Explanation of so much third-term talk is the growing realization of the New Dealers that not one of their number seems likely to "make the grade" at the Democratic National convention in 1940. President Roosevelt himself would have been satisfied if he could have gotten Robert H. Jackson started. But Jim Farley, Ed Flynn of the Bronx, and others with real followings in New York would not give Jackson the chance to make a record as governor of New York. So the crowd around Roosevelt that wants his policies carried on, and each of whom wants to retain his own place in the sun, has come to the conclusion that Roosevelt must make the "sacrifice."

A very important factor in the third-term situation is that the conservative Democrats are getting stronger—seem more likely to control a lot of big delegations in 1940. Roosevelt can have New York's delegation for himself, but could not deliver it against the wishes of the men who balked him on Jackson, especially if Governor Herbert H. Lehman agreed with them. The mere fact that Lehman, opposed to court packing and alarmed about federal spending, is assured of the Democratic nomination for senator is the signpost of this situation.

CIO will face a much more unfriendly congress in January—a congress that will be all set to revise the Wagner Labor Relations Act in some essential particulars. No drive to accomplish what many employers would like to see will get anywhere, but the act is apt to be revised as the American Federation of Labor would like, despite any efforts Roosevelt may make to stop it. Sentiment is building up too strong against the CIO and against the National Labor Relations Board for alleged partiality to CIO.

CIO will face the new congress with an almost unbroken record of defeats whenever it appealed to the voters in behalf of candidates, or against candidates EXCEPT where the American Feedration of Labor happened to be on the same side, as is the case in the campaign for Senator Alben W. Barkley. William Green happened to be on the winning side in every fight so far where his organization has opposed the CIO, starting off with Pennsylvania and Iowa.

* * *

LITTLE attenion was paid to the Texas primary save that a very spectacular figure, Maury Maverick, was beaten, and that another spectacular figure, Hatton W. Sumners, was renominated. What most observers overlooked in this CIO versus A. F. of L. battle was that one other Texas Democrat who was supported by CIO as well as the New Deal was defeated outright, while a third was forced to a runoff primary. Meanwhile four other important Texas Democrats now in the House were marked for defeat along with Sumners, and every one of them was renominated easily.

One of the reasons most of the political dopesters figure Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith is almost sure of renomination, although he was high up on the purge list for having opposed the President on the court and other issues, is that A. F. of L. is fighting for him. Incidentally, the "purge" has narrowed down to Senators Walter F. George in Georgia and Millard E. Tydings in Maryland, so far as any positive results are within the realm of reason. Certainty of renomination of Senator Alva B. Adams in Colorado, added to the list of insurgent victories achieved and certain to come, makes that pretty sure. Under the Colorado law Adams' opponent did not get enough votes in his party convention to get his name on the primary ballot.

TREMENDOUSLY increased strength in the next Congress for the Southern conservative group, opposed to Roosevelt on spending and business-harrying legislation, on playing the CIO game on labor and on widening the field of government competition with business, seems certain as a result of primaries so far.

By the same token more conservative strength in the next Democratic national convention is foreshadowed. Most important is the triumph of the Harry Flood Byrd machine in Virginia. This means not only continuance of the opposition of Senators Byrd and Carter Glass to the New Deal, but that if ill health should force Glass to retire—which anti-New Dealers have been worrying about no little—a Byrd man would take his place. In both contested districts during the primary fight the New Deal candidates attacked the "Byrd machine" for opposing them. In fact the New Deal was the only issue.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

Did She Marry So 'Badly'?

I REMEMBER her well. She was little and lively and surrounded by a swarm of children. They were her own and she was about 35. There weren't many automobiles in those days and I'd see her and her husband and the children coming into town on a Saturday to do their marketing.

Even as a boy I never paid much attention to her husband. He was a quiet, steady sort of person who rarely opened his mouth. I though he was all right, but I didn't really know him. . . . I'd often passed their farm about five miles out of town, and it looked like most farm houses—small but neat, and all the fences and the barns and the out-houses were whitewashed and all the fences were in repair.

I knew some of that woman's town relatives. It was from them I gathered that Jane's life was sad. Those relations were like the rest of us in a country town, but more prosperous than the average. They "had money"—and the merry little wife of the quiet farmer was one of them, but she didn't have any money. Furthermore, they all knew she never would have much. . . . So when I was at their house I used to hear them speak pityingly of "poor Jane," who had to work so hard. She didn't look to me as though she worked too hard; in fact, she looked healthier than her kinfolk in town.

But from their point of view "Jane had married badly." She could have married a man with a fine ranch but she hadn't loved him and she refused him. Instead, she married a man with a little ranch and they'd been deep in debt for years.

After I heard about that, my small boy interest in that farm wife grew greatly. I used to stare at her and wonder whether her heart was breaking. I would hear her laugh and speculate on the courage it must take when you are bogged down in despair. I thought about her quite a bit for many weeks and she was a heroine of mine.

But never, while I was a youngster, could I figure it out. It was years before it occurred to me that, though Jane had married "badly," she didn't know it. They thought her husband a failure, but she knew he wasn't.

People were sorry for her, but she wasn't sorry for herself. They thought she ought to weep, but she insisted on laughing. She was one of those splendidly fortunate people who never know their "bad luck."

Listen, World!

You Needn't "Stay In the Mood."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"I'VE READ," said she, "about the amount of space you columnists have to cover. I hope to write some day myself and I wish you'd tell me how you, personally, manage to work like that . . . how you keep yourself in the mood."

The answer, my dear, is I DON'T. And since that answer goes far beyond a columnist's chair, perhaps some details may help.

Once, like you, I thought it was necessary for a writer "to keep in the mood." They'd fed me tripe like that. Temperament was, they said, necessary. Not merely for writing but for all-geared living. One couldn't make a good job of their existence, in any department, unless they were like that—always ablaze. Very happy or very sad . . . always intense. Whatever the occasion, the mood must match it . . .

And I believed them. Obviously, that was the way things were meant to be. For see how much more generous one could be to a needy person if the heart were wrung with pity! And what greater heights of courage one might reach if one were furious at a wrong!

Surely they were right. And so, during a period of my life, I worked as vigorously to "keep in the mood" as an athlete would work to keep fit. And when my enthusiasm lagged—as at times it mysteriously did—I would be overcome with disgust.

"What is the matter with you?" I would cry at myself. "Are you becoming one of those fat-heads who move through life without feeling—like cows, like vegetables! Have you no pride? Then prove it! Express it! Show that you are alive . . . that you can respond."

So I would lash myself into fresh emotion . . . trying to "keep the mood" . . . flinging hot words on paper . . . making vigorous gestures at living. Yet, lash as I would, the inertia would return. And work as I might, "the mood" cooled . . . I could not keep myself at the blazing point. Then I was desperate. What was wrong with me? I could not feel words! I could not feel people! I was lost! I was burned out! And, slouching over my silent keys, I watched other workers . . . envying them . . . hating them . . . knowing I never could be one of them.

But even as I watched, a curious wonder came to me. They were world-famous, those other workers . . . men whose names were beacons wherever the news word went. Arthur Brisbane, touching dry facts into living drama. George Holmes, sitting placidly, poker-faced, in one spot for nearly 60 hours at a stretch, tapping out a "running news story." Joseph V. Connolly—my own boss, general manager of far-flung Hearst ventures—packing the lure and laugh wallop of all Erin into two lines. Jack Lait—columnist and editor—turning printer's ink into the pound and pulse of the soul. Odd McIntyre (Dear, we loved you!) stripping raw nerves to a film on which a city was caught. Sobol—sensitive, lonely, deft, taking the path Odd left and making it, so gloriously, his own.

Great men, each, in his line . . . men who made the whole world throb and thrill but who, in their own selves, worked without thrill or throb!

That was the wonder of it! They did not lash themselves . . . they did not wait on a mood. Quietly they went ahead—MAKING THE GESTURES. Often they came to their desks exhausted by personal cares, drained by personal pain. Utterly empty. But there was a job to do—AND THEY DID IT. Did it by making the gestures . . . over and over and over . . . until life caught them up again.

And therein lay the secret of their greatness . . . the secret of all human greatness, whether it function in a shy, stuttering young English king . . . or a brave young Chinese wife . . . or a tired mother in the Bronx . . . or a columnist sagging, half blind, over his tapping keys—

That life can flow without feeling—

That a man is more than his moods—

That the conquering feeling can control the lagging flesh.

THAT THE SOUL CAN CARRY ON THOUGH THE BODY BE BLIND AND SPENT!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The other day a thick-shouldered, prematurely gray traveler got off a train and checked into a Manhattan hotel. That night he was guest of honor at a dinner. Next day he climbed into an automobile and was driven over as much of the city as was possible to cover in one day. And the next day he continued his observations.

He even went into the sky to see how New York looked from the air. He visited the great amusement centers—Coney Island, Music Hall, the night clubs, the boxing arenas—to see what form of entertainment drew best in New York. And finally he was satisfied.

"Yes," he said. "I like this. It will do. I don't know just where it will be, but New York is the right place for it."

And so it became assured that New York is to have a Hawaiian village, a duplicate of the famous Lalani village in Honolulu.

* * *

YOU must not let the word village make you think this is a PWA project. It is the idea of George P. Mossman, who founded the original village ten years ago.

Lalani village, I imagine, is what might be called the last stronghold of real Hawaiian culture. It is encircled by a high wall and every day a cross-section of life as lived by Hawaiians 200 years ago is reenacted. There are grass huts for the men and grass huts for the women. The native dances, the language, the customs are taught and preserved. There is a heiau (temple), and an imu (underground oven) where pige are roasted. Guides take you from point to point, lecturing on a picturesque form of living that has practically disappeared. It is Mossman's idea to preserve this culture through education.

* * *

YOU enter the village about seven at night and the ceremonies last two or three hours. This includes the tour, the lectures, a luau (feast), music, the hula, and finally the famous fire dance in which a girl appears to be dancing in flames, to appease the anger of the goddess of the crater.

Mossman thinks New York is a good place for this village because of the vast interest shown by tourists in the Islands. Since his village opened he has had more than 6,000 students, and these students have been overwhelmingly tourist class. He doesn't know just when his plans can be put into effect, but he hopes to have the village underway in another year.

One of the highlights of his visit was seeing his daughter dance in New York. She is Paulani, "most photographed girl in the Islands," and one of three Aloha maids featured by Ray Kinney at the Hawaiian Room.

My good friend Sam Blake sends in a honey . . . It's the Ollypanyaporukkodii. No, it isn't a mammal. It's a civilized version of a Belgian Congo native drink. Cost $2 if you buy it at the Piccadilly, which makes it the most expensive cocktail in the country. Its authenticity is guaranteed by Tom Crowley, head barkeep, who had it straight from Tommy Kran, the big game hunter, himself.

Health Advice

Why the Banana Is Good Food.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE BANANA bears fruit but once. When it is garnered, the tree is cut down.

Such want of her usual prodigality on the part of nature would seem to argue that the banana has especial virtues. And this argument is upheld by the suffrage of mankind for five centures or more, and by the considered verdict of modern dietetic science.

The original home of the banana probably was Asia. The Arabs, in the course of their traffic in slaves and ivory, moving across Africa, gradually carried it from tribe to tribe. Historically, it emerges into documentary recognition in 1482, when the Portuguese found it on the Guinea coast of the Atlantic.

To America, this fruit was brought by Father Thomas de Berlanga, in 1516. He planted a few banana roots on the island of Santo Domingo. Its introduction to the United States was probably as late as 1850.

But our grandfathers had no experience of this delicacy, because not until 1899 did the banana industry assume any proportions here.

Advantages as Food.

As a food it has many advantages. It has more foodstuff and less water than any other fresh fruit. It contains 22 per cent starch or sugar and thus is high in energy requirement. It also contains considerable protein. Its vitamin content is good. It is also palatable, appetizing and highly digestible.

For these reasons and others, it has deservedly become popular as a form of reducing diet. Several years ago Dr. Harrop of Baltimore suggested the milk and banana diet for reducing. Milk and bananas make up a fairly balanced ration, containing together all the food elements and most of the vitamins and minerals. Besides, bananas are "filling" and satisfy hunger better than most foods.

When used as a continuous diet, one or two large bananas are used with a glass of milk for breakfast and lunch. For the evening meal, the diet may be modified by serving a clear soup, a slice of lean meat, one or two portions of a green vegetable, a slice of bread and butter and a portion of uncooked fruit.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"To Give No Quarter".

The use of "quarter", one of the most common words in the English language, in phrases like "to give no quarter" in the sense of "to grant no mercy" originated in incidents and episodes of European wars of centuries ago.

According to one theory, this turn of expression arose out of an agreement between the embattled Dutch and Spaniards that the ransom of a captured private or officer should be one quarter of a year's pay.

To "beg quarter," therefore, was to request to be returned for a fourth of one's wages, while to "refuse quarter" was to decline the offer and to dispatch the prisoner forthwith — an explanation supported apparently by Randle Cotgrave's French-English Dictionary published in 1611, which defined quartier as "quarter of faire war, wherein souldiers are taken prisoners and ransomed at a certaine rate."

CHAPTER II

Noel hadn't believed that Ruth Chester would stoop to such infamy as that of lying. It was plain enough that she was trying her best to keep Noel and Julian apart when she had told her over the phone that Doctor Paige was still in New Orleans. But she was not going to succeed entirely, Noel told herself with a smile.

That morning when Laurie started to work, she had asked Noel to meet her at the De Luxe for dinner. But Laurie had called it supper. All employes of the De Luxe, Laurie told her, were entitled to a discount from the price of their meals. And now that she could begin at last to pay Noel back for some of the things she had done for her, Laurie was anxious to start.

"You don't owe me a thing," Noel told her, but she was delighted to have such a good excuse to come to the De Luxe. She had been debating over and over in her mind whether or not she should go there tonight. Julian hadn't even called her by phone. Perhaps he had even forgotten his feeling of responsibility toward her.

* * *

Six o'clock found Noel walking to the De Luxe. Julian was there. He rose the minute he saw Noel come into the cafe, dressed in her suit, which she had carefully pressed, and the clean linen blouse which she had washed and ironed, all under Laurie's careful directions. She was wearing the little "beanie" over the back of her loose golden curls, and she had never looked more irresistible.

But of course Noel did not realize that. All she really thought of was that Julian was there, looking so tall and rugged and brown, and yet there was a tired look in his fine dark eyes. Seeing him again after his absence was almost unbearably sweet.

Noel explained to Laurie and moved toward him with an eager little rush. He held her chair for her while she seated herself and spread her paper napkin, which immediately floated down to the floor. Julian laughingly handed her another.

She was conscious of his smiling happy gaze and was afraid her own delight at seeing him was shining through her eyes. At last she managed to say, casually, "You look tired, but happy."

"My patient is on the way to recovery. It was a serious major operation, but the little chap is a good fighter, and I know now that he'll pull through." There was a devout quality in his voice.

* * *

Noel was beginning to realize just what his work meant to him It was like a religion—a consecration. She could see how it could absorb him so completely that there was hardly room for anything else in his life. Not even love, perhaps.

"You're thinner," he said, "and also you were quite pale when you first came in. You have a little better color now."

'Have I" she parried. "That's the doctor in you, always observing, analyzing, diagnosing. The only trouble with me is that I'm hungry, which seems to be a more or less chronic state."

He ordered steak, potatoes, a green vegetable and pear salad "To bad we can't have broiled squabs, avocados—" he half apologized.

"Julian," Noel said with sudden earnestness, "if you only had half an idea how very much I like steak and potatoes."

"Still a novelty, what?" he smiled. Then she realized that he was regarding her steadily. "You seem to be changed in some indefinable way," he said. "I can't quite put my finger on it, but it's there."

"I hope it's for the better. According to your opinion, there's quite a lot of room for improvement."

"Why remind me of that?" he smiled again. This time she saw he was looking at her hands, which certainly showed the need of care.

"Well, of course I need a manicure," she began uncertainly.

He shook his head. "I'm afraid you're taking this experiment entirely too seriously. I'm even still hoping that you'll call it off."

"The answer is still no. You see, I'm—having fun."

"You're absolutely unpredictable. Having fun being a sort of nurse and governess combined? Do you actually expect me to believe that?"

* * *

Noel started She had almost forgotten that Julian believed her to be employed out at the Garwoods. To cover her confusion she took up her coffee cup.

"Hadn't you better give me your address?" Julian persisted.

At that Noel almost swallowed half a pear from her salad. She choked a little and this gave her time to think up an answer. "You're not thinking of calling?" she countered at last.

"You have Sundays off?" he asked.

She was a little more flustered at that and answered without the necessary caution "Oh, Sunday—Sunday evenings, of course. That is—at least every other Sunday."

"No wonder you're looking pale," Julian said, his eyes upon her with a thoughtful frown. "It tomorrow your day?"

She nodded.

"Well, then, as your doctor," Julian began with his whimsical smile, "I prescribe a day in the country. I'll call for you in my car of sorts—it's a Ford, in case you should be interested, and I'll have Comtepas here fix us up a lunch."

* * *

Noel tried hard to keep her eyes steady and her voice as well, when she said, "Now, really, you mustn't take your responsibility toward me too seriously. If you'd prefer taking Miss Chester out—" in spite of her determination to be nonchalant, Noel's voice broke.

"Listen, you brat," Julian said reaching over and giving her ear the tiniest tweak, "I'm not thinking of my responsibility toward you at all, do you hear?"

Then he said with his usual persistence, "What is your address? Can you be ready at 10 o'clock or 10-30?"

"I—that is, suppose I meet you here," Noel suggested. "You see, the cashier is a good friend of mine, and it will be very convenient to meet you here." It was a lame excuse she knew.

Julian smiled and said that would be all right They were finished now, and walked together to the register, where Noel introduced Julian to Laurie

Laurie held out her hand. "I'm glad to meet you, Doctor Paige I've heard lots about you"

"Have you really?" Julian queried "I hope most of it was something nice."

"It certainly was, Laurie returned

"You wouldn't flatter me, would you?" Julian laughed.

"Sure I wouldn't You see, Noel and I are roommates."

"Is that so?" Julian exclaimed. "In that case," he went on with a teasing look at Noel, "would you mind telling me where you live?"

But Laurie had to wait on some of the cash customers, so Noel and Julian went on out, both of them laughing.

When they had gained the street, Julian said. "That's a nice little girl, Noel. I like her."

"Do you always size people up as accurately as that?"

"Usually," he answered, looking down at her smilingly.

"You're right in this case. Laurie is a darling. But there are times when she has a sad expression on her face, and it worries me She hasn't any relatives And I'm sure she's unhappy for some reason."

"There are many girls in the world like Laurie without relatives or money. Thrown absolutely on their own resources But I believe our little Laurie can look after herself," Julian comforted.

Then he was looking down at Noel again with his whimsical smile. "Wouldn't you be interested in knowing of whom I was thinking when I planned our little holiday? I told you I was not thinking of you."

"But you were just the same," Noel contradicted. "You were prescribing for me. It's only the doctor in you, after all."

"And that's where you are wrong," Julian began with emphasis "My motive is a purely selfish one I'm prescribing for myself"

WHICH WAY DO YOU PREPARE FOR WINTER?

Is this winter going to be another siege of burdensome furnace tending, a constant battle against dirt and soot, a series of sneezing and colds caused by uneven temperatures? If not, what are you doing to banish these nuisances of outmoded heating methods from your home? Why not face this winter free from furnace worries by installing automatic gas heat?

Gas heat — the only completely automatic modern heating service — really costs no more than out-moded methods when all incidental expenses are considered. Get a free heating survey made of your home now and find out how reasonable gas heat really is. Prepare for winter this year in the modern way with gas heat.

FIRE-RESISTANT—PERMANENT ROOF AND SIDEWALLS will never wear out

AS A MATTER OF FACT

THE HOUSE YOU BUILD OR BUY IN 1938—WITH 25% TO 40% MORE REAL VALUE—actually costs much less than the 1926 house

YOU get from 25% to 40% more home for your money today. And that's a conservative estimate—as you'll agree after checking the 16 basic improvements shown above.

And you actually pay no more for this 25% to 40% greater value than you would have paid for a 1926 house, incredible as it seems.

There's really no mystery about this greater value—it's available today because everyone connected with the building industry has been hard at work for the past ten or twelve years learning to stretch the home-building, home-buying dollar so far that today's home is the most outstanding value in America.

Consider the manufacturer's contributions. Today there are many new, lower priced, more cheaply applied materials that were unknown in 1926. And a surprising proportion of the 1938 home is actually built in the factory . . . ready-made door frames, windows, kitchen and other cabinet assemblies, standard lumber, modern building products of many kinds that come in planned units for speedy and labor-saving assembly.

But, important as these savings are, they are only a part of the whole bargain value. Today you get plus value at every step . . . and here's why . . .

Your house will be better designed. Great strides have been made by the better architects and builders of the country in designing homes to eliminate waste space and to make them more attractive.

Your house will be better built. It must pass Federal Housing Administration inspection for quality specifications, sound principles of construction.

Your house will be more comfortable. Insulation, improved heating plants, air conditioning have given the modern house comfort undreamed of ten years ago.

Your house will be more economical. Many materials have been developed which have eliminated items of expensive upkeep that were looked upon as a necessary evil of home ownership just a few years ago.

Your house will be more efficient. It will have better kitchen planning, with new and improved labor-saving devices, streamlined, built-in fixtures that remove the word drudgery from housekeeping, and better room arrangement that eliminates many of the errors of construction that meant added burdens to the housewife.

Your house will be safer. Fire-resistant insulation and building materials, healthier atmospheric conditions help minimize past hazards . . . and with all this—

Your house will be far easier to finance. Never has it been so easy to FINANCE a home. Long-term, low-cost Federal Housing Administration financing makes it possible to pay for a new home out of a modest income, with low monthly payments like rent, on a plan that gives you full ownership of the house in 20 years—and at a cost, in many cases, as much as 85% less than former financing costs.

BONUS VALUES BUILT IN NEW TYPE OF HOMES

Advances in Construction and Design Give Homeowner More for His Money.

Prospective home-builders in Mansfield are invited to investigate the "bonus values" of today's house as compared with the house of a few years ago and to satisfy themselves that although the modern structure offers 25 to 40 per cent more value, it can be built for less.

This invitation is extended by local building industry groups who are sponsoring a campaign to get the facts on home building costs before the public.

Among the "extras which cost no more" pointed out by the group are:

1. Better exterior design. The modern house has charm and beauty which not only give increased satisfaction and pride to the owner but greatly enhance resale value.

2. Better construction and better materials. Building practices have been greatly improved during the last few years And even greater strides have been made in improving building materials. A person can now have roofs and walls that under normal conditions will last a lifetime, are fire resistant and resistant to weather and wear.

More Living Space.

3. More living space. Better exterior design has been supplemented by better interior planning. Formerly the average house had as much as 20 per cent waste space, mostly in the attic and basement. Nowadays, these two portions of the house are used to advantage; the attic as an extra bed room or sewing room and the basement as an "extra living room" or rumpus room. The kitchen is scientifically planned to save steps. This all tends to further cut the cost of building.

4. Extra bathrooms. Whereas one bathroom was considered sufficient just a short time ago, the more up-to-date houses today have two baths and ofter a down-stairs lavatory and "powder room." Bathroom fixtures are of better quality but lower in price. In addition, non-corroding, long-wearing copper and brass plumbing is now the rule rather than the exception.

Kitchen Improved.

5. The modern kitchen, in addition to its improved design, is a joy to the heart of any housewife. It is probably the portion of the house which has kept closest step with the rapid technical advances of our world of today.

6. Automatic heat and air conditioning. With automatic heat has come release from a great deal of the drudgery which attended the house-keeping of the past. An important adjunct to automatic heat is air conditioning which cleans, humidifies and circulates the air in winter.

7. Home insulation. This is one of the most important forward steps in building. Today, a home isn't modern without it. Its great value lies in the fact that not only does an efficient type of insulation keep a house up to 15 degrees cooler on hottest summer days but it saves as much as 30 per cent on fuel bills.

8. Weather-tight windows and doors. Ready made doors and windows with built-in weather stripping are now standard equipment on all well-built houses. This makes heating easier, and helps to eliminate drafts.

BEDROOM-STUDY

For a bedroom-study, ivory and delft blue can be effectively used. Ivory paint with a pink tone is used for the furniture, with the exception of a desk and a table which are painted delft blue.

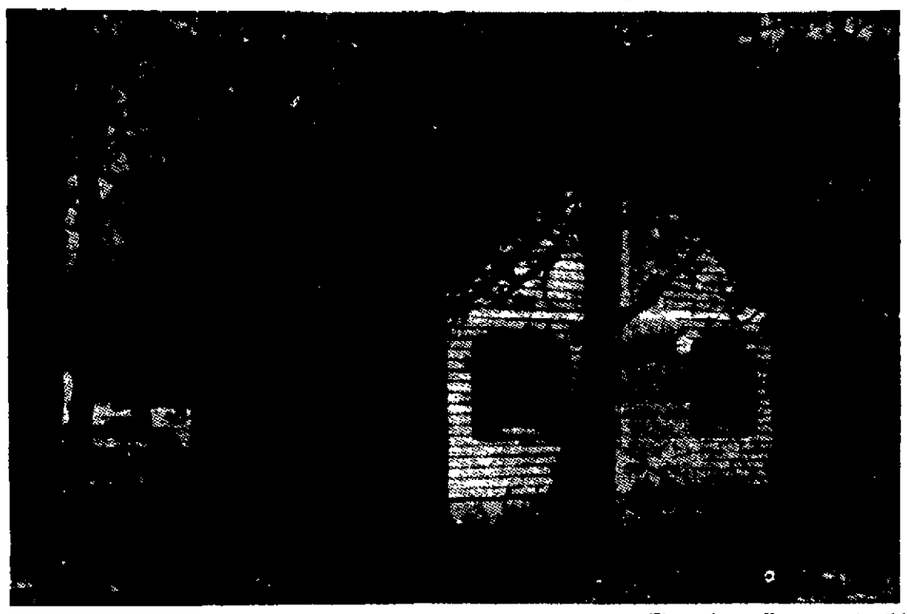
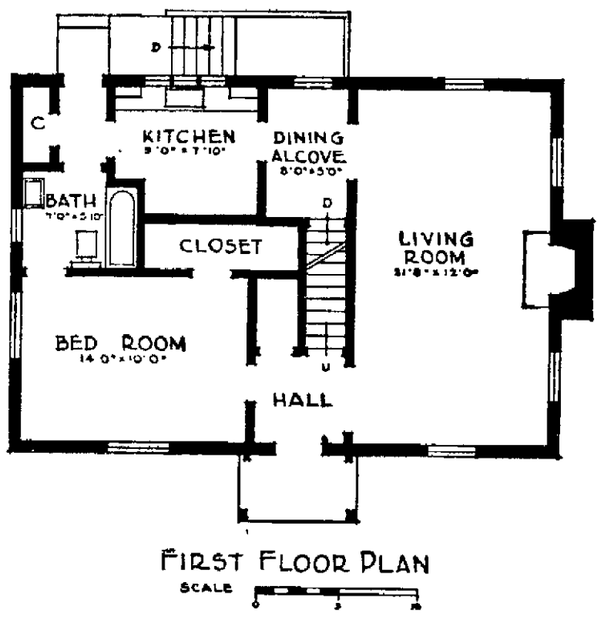
House Designed For Family of Two





FIRST FLOOR PLAN

There is really more to this little dwelling than meets the eye at first glance. It has a full basement and an unfinished second story that may be developed into two additional bedrooms and bath when the occasion demands. Also featured is the exceptionally large amount of closet space.

The house is located in Columbus, Ohio, and was appraised at $4,175. The Federal Housing administration has insured a mortgage on it of $2,700.

PAINT IMPROVES CEMENT FLOORS

It is always advisable to paint cement floors whether they are in schools, garages, shops, club rooms or in the home.

Paint not only prevents the dusting-off of the cement and preserves the surface, but it also prevents discoloration and is an important feature from the viewpoint of sanitation. If the floor is new, before painting scrub it thoroughly with sal soda and hot water—or other cleaning solution. Rinse thoroughly and let dry. To neutralize the always-present alkali in cement floors before painting, apply a solution of three pounds zinc sulphate crystals to a gallon of water.

After the floor is dry rinse several times with clear water and again let it dry. Paints, specially manufactured for cement floors, should be used.

GAY NURSERY

Rose, green and yellow combine to make a cheery color scheme for a nursery. The bed, chest and chairs are painted coral-rose, the table jade green to match the rug. Bedspread and curtains are of pale yellow which blends pleasantly with the light buff painted walls and woodwork.

DISTINCTIVE LIVING ROOM

For a living room of distinction, paint the walls jonquil yellow, the floor a soft dark grey, and upholster the furniture in warm gray and white. White draperies trimmed with Chinese red and occasional touches of Chinese red about the room give the desired accent to the gray and yellow harmony.

"Your key, Mrs. Brown . . . it's a home you can be proud of, and may I congratulate you on your foresight in building when you did?"

ANSWER THESE QUESTIONS FIRST

Things to Consider Before You Buy or Build a Home Listed by FHA.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The importance of using the utmost care in the selection of a desirable neighborhood is being stressed to prospective home owners by the Federal Housing administration.

To this end it has prepared a booklet entitled "The FHA Plan of Home Ownership" which contains key questions, the answers to which will help determine whether the contemplated neighborhood makes proper provisions for all necessary facilities.

Some of the questions asked in the booklet are.

What type of neighbors live in the community?

In what type of homes?

Are there zoning laws of deed restrictions to protect the property against undesirable encroachments such as factories, stores and filling stations?

How is the home located in relation to the section of the city where members of the family are employed?

Is in within walking distance or within reach of buses and street cars?

Is it accessible to shopping centers?

Does the property have an adequate pure water supply, and adequate sewage disposal facilities?

Are gas, electric and telephone services available?

Are streets graded and surfaced?

Are the advantages of proper fire and police protection afforded?

All these points should be considered.

GIRL PLACES EX-DEPUTY AT MURDER SCENE

Pretty 18-Year-Old Surprise Witness Says She Saw Carroll in Car.

(By International News Service)

SOUTH PARIS, Me.—A surprise witness, pretty 18-year-old Hazel Talbot, took the witness stand today and definitely placed ex-Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll at the scene of the murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield on the night of Oct. 16 last.

The doctor was beaten and strangled to death about 8 o'clock that night in the home of Paul Dwyer, 19, who is now serving a life term in prison for the crime. The Dwyer home is on "Paris Hill," directly across the road from the Paris Hill Country club.

Saw Him In Car, Claim.

Miss Talbot, a high school girl, testified she saw Carroll sitting in his car parked near the Dwyer home between 7 and 7:30 that evening.

Special Prosecutor Ralph M. Ingalls asked the girl if she knew Carroll, now on trial for the slaying of Dr. Littlefield.

Miss Talbot said she did. She also said she knew his car, having seen him in it a number of times.

The girl stood in the pulpit-like witness box as she testified. Before beginning her testimony, Ingalls asked a young man named Robert Pierce to stand. He did, in the first row of spectators. He was asked to raise his right hand and he, too, was sworn.

"I was invited to go on an automobile ride that night by Robert Pierce and I did," Miss Talbot testified. "We drove to Paris Hill. There I saw Mr. Carroll in the car parked on the road near the Dwyer house. He was sitting back of the wheel."

Back's Dwyer's Story.

The state regarded Miss Talbot's testimony as highly important because it was the first time any witness—except Paul Dwyer—had placed Carroll at the scene of the crime.

Young Dwyer had testified Carroll had promised to bring his 17-year-old daughter, Barbara, to the Dwyer home that night for a physical examination. He said Carroll had claimed he got Barbara "in trouble." Dwyer didn't believe it, confided in his friend, Dr. Littlefield, and brought the doctor there that night. Dwyer claimed that after the doctor berated Carroll as a man "not fit to live," the ex-cop killed the doctor, and 36 hours later killed Mrs. Littlefield as well.

On cross-examination Defense Attorney Clyde R. Chapman asked Miss Talbot is she was sure it was Carroll she saw that night. She said she was.

"Was anyone with him?" asked Chapman.

"I think he was alone," the girl replied.

Law Catches Up With 2 Boys, Girl In 2 Auto Thefts

The law had caught up with two boys, one from Mansfield and the other from Michigan, and their 15-year-old girl accomplice today as the result of the theft of two automobiles.

Jewell Harper, 18, of Mansfield, accused of the theft of an automobile here on July 22, pleaded guilty in municipal court yesterday to a charge of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent and was bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond. Unable to furnish bond he was committed to the county jail.

Meanwhile Harper's 18-year-old companion, who accompanied him here from Lansing, Mich., was returned there to face similar charges. A 15-year-old girl who accompanied Harper to Michigan two weeks ago was held by juvenile authorities as a delinquent. She was returned here Sunday by Michigan authorities who took the other youth into custody.

The boys were arrested last Friday on U. S. route 42, north of Mansfield by State Highway Patrolman L. D. Alexander, while driving a machine said to have been stolen in Michigan. At the same time Michigan police picked up the girl in Lansing with the car stolen here two weeks ago.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that Harper admitted taking a machine owned by the Mansfield Provident company from a garage on West Dickson avenue and driving it to Michigan while the other youth admitted stealing the car they were driving while arrested, in Lansing.

They said the girl was to have driven here in the car which had been left in Michigan.

RESUME WORK ON PAVING JOB

Contractor and Union Reach Truce After Clevelanders Force Men From Project.

the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Sitting in on the meeting which lasted for nearly two hours was I. R. Ault, of Ashland, division engineer for the state highway department and Sheriff E. P. Long.

Long warned union officials that intimidation of any laborers would not be tolerated in Richland county.

Addressing Ben Hagerfeld of Cleveland, business agent for the International union of engineers; Joe Huntsman, agent for the Mansfield truck drivers' local and Max Garver, agent for the laborers union, all A. F. of L. affiliates, Long said:

"I don't like the tactics that were pulled on the job today—that kind of stuff doesn't go in Richland county and I won't stand for any more of such intimidation while I'm sheriff here."

Long warned that he would not allow any picketing on the job by men brought here from outside counties.

Huntsman is agent for the truck drivers' local which conducted an unsuccessful coal drivers' strike here last winter in their attempt to gain a closed shop and increase in wages.

Huntsman and Garver, as well as Hagerfeld sought to have Ringwald hire all his labor through the union.

Ringwald explained that his bid of $251,995 on the job which is to be completed within 200 working days was made on the basis of the prevailing wage scale in Richland county and that he would not pay higher wages to union labor.

"I am not opposed to using union labor on the job," he said, "but I will not pay them any higher wages than any other employe."

He added that he was now paying wages equal to union scale as set up under the fair wage laws.

He pointed out that under the terms of the contract he was privileged to employ his skilled and semi-skilled labor wherever he chooses but it was mandatory that he hire the common labor through the National Re-employment office.

This met with the disapproval of Huntsman who charged that the "majority of the workers obtained from the re-employment bureau don't amount to a d——."

Ringwald said he was willing to hire union labor on the job but that they would be "fired like anyone else" if they didn't do their work.

Ault said he was only at the meeting in the interests of the state and satisfied that the construction work would not be held up, left early.

JOBS FOR 1000

Willys-Overland Plant to Start Reopening Tomorrow.

TOLEDO — (U.P.) — Willys-Overland, Inc., announced today that it would begin reopening tomorrow, with employment of 1,000 men between then and Aug. 15 in its body department.

David R. Wilson, president, said that all departments of the plant would be operating by Aug. 17.

RESCUERS FAIL

Hundreds See Current Carry Two to Death Near Dam.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Hundreds watched from the shores as two men drowned at the foot of a dam in the Scioto river here last night as they lost a battle against the swift back current.

The victims were Clifford Longshore, 31, and Edwin H. Matheson, 25. They had been swimming near the dam and were believed to have been drawn into the dangerous current when they came too close.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

FROM THE BRIER PATCH

ALONG the bluff in the pasture, above the spring where the cattle drink, grows a clump of blackberry bushes, several yards in diameter. From a little distance, nothing can be seen except a growth of dense, green briers. Coming closer, an accent of red berries puts in its appearance; and when one gets to the very edge he is surprised to find clusters of berries, both black and red, loading down the stalks.

We took our baskets, little son and I, and went to pick the blackberries. It was a pleasant task, a delightful place to be early on a summer morning. From the top of the hillock one looks across the draw to a red clover meadow. The fresh sweet odor of the nodding blossoms comes on the morning wind. The trees along the fence row sway and roar. From the blackberry thicket comes the woodsy scent of ripened fruit. The dead canes, crushed under heavy shoes, yield yet another odor, pungent and distinctly part of blackberry time.

The stalks grew higher than my head. I noticed how their thorny barbs grew all around the main stalks, and leaned like fishhooks, toward the center, along the lateral branches. They clung with thorny fingers to my shirt, bit savagely into my shoulder, clutched my old straw hat with ripping, tearing fury. I crashed through a group of dead canes to reach the tempting hidden clusters of glossy black fruit. A rabbit scurried out and ran with great leaps and white bobbing tail across the pasture.

"Brer Rabbit got out o' his brier patch," we said, and laughed.

We found the best berries underneath the bushes, shaded and hidden, but dead ripe. They were too soft to carry home. To pile them in a basket would have spoiled them. We ate all we could hold. When finally we dragged our basket home, our mouths were black with juice, our hands and arms scratched and red from contact with the briers, but we were content. Blackberry pie will go very well next winter.

SANDUSKY SEEKS REDUCED RATES

Presents Ordinance Asking 12 To 20 Per Cent Cut To O. P. S.

SANDUSKY—(U.P.)—A ten-year electric light ordinance providing a reduction of 12 to 20 per cent in the present rate schedule was presented to the Ohio Public Service company today for acceptance or rejection.

The city commission passed the ordinance 3 to 2, with Commissioner G. A. Apel threatening a referendum vote in the November election. "White way" lights in the downtown district was not included and the commission ordered legislation prepared to secure bids for this portion of the city's lighting.

Hubbell Calls Off Speech In Jersey City, Blames Rain

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—(U.P.)—Charles H. Hubbell of Cleveland, organizer for the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said today that rain had prevented his attempt to test the right of free speech in Jersey City without a permit last night and that he would try again tonight.

He was undaunted by the charge of the Hudson county committee for labor defense and civil rights that James Burkitt, foe of Mayor Frank Hague, had been placed in solitary confinement on a bread and water diet at the county penitentiary on charges of disorderly conduct resulting from his attempt to speak without a police permit.

Hubbell said he had come here on vacation and had decided to take the opportunity, as an individual rather than as a union organizer, to test his right to make a speech about Mayor Hague.

When he arrived at Journal Square for his speech last night it was raining hard, he said, and there were only a few spectators and some policemen to hear him so he postponed it.

FIVE TEACHERS EMPLOYED, CITY STAFF FILLED

Board Hires Last of 225 Instructors for Fall Term; New Courses Added.

Teaching staffs for Mansfield public schools for the school year opening next month were filled today following a special meeting of the board of education yesterday afternoon at which five new teachers were employed.

Resignations of two teachers were accepted and a leave of absence for one semester was granted a third. Employment of the new teachers brought to 225 the number of teachers in the city system.

Employed yestetrday were: Emily Palmer of Washington, C. H., to be assigned an elementary teaching post; Eureta Bumpus of Butler, teacher in elementary music; Walter Mickey of Columbus, vocational English at Senior high school; Annabelle Hildebrand of Columbus, elementary teacher, Edith Stuckey of Shreve, elementary teacher. Ruth Lucille Motz of Columbus, was given an assignment as cadet teacher.

Accepts Resignations.

The board accepted the resignation of Betty McConnell of Mansfield, Luella Householder and Mildred Yarnell. Josephine McFarland was given the leave of absence for one semestetr because of illness.

Selection of Miss Nona Marie Wilson of Columbus, to supervise a class in adult home making education also was approved. Her appointment is still subject to approval by the state department of education.

The course is a new one and funds for its operation are provided by the federal government. Toledo is the only other city in Ohio which has taken steps to institute such a class, board members were told.

Concluding its session, the board passed separate resolutions expressing appreciation to the city P. T. A. council, playground supervisors and directors and The News-Journal for co-operation in the campaign for passage of the school bond issue which, if passed at today's election, will open the way to finance a million dollar expension and improvement program in the city school system.

INDUSTRY HITS PEAK CAPACITY

Rayon Factories Operate at Close to Full Production.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The rayon industry throughout the nation is operating at close to 100 per cent of capacity and is booked for almost full production through August and September, Hiram S. Rivitz, president of the Industrial Rayon Corp., said today.

Industrial Rayon's plants here and at Covington, Va., are operating at full capacity, Rivitz said. He attributed some of the business to an announced increase in rayon prices to take effect Oct. 1. "The increase is very small, though," Rivitz said, "and some makers are booked for October production because buyers fear there may be another increase."

VETS WIND UP DEM CAMPAIGN

200 at Tri-County Rally Here; Blecker Speaks for Davey, Answers Accusations.

The Richland county Democratic campaign was brought to a close last night as more than 200 veterans gathered at Baku Grotto hall for a tri-county rally.

Veterans from Richland, Ashland and Crawford counties heard John McSweeney, Wooster, seeking the Democratic nomination for congressman-at-large, and Frank Cave of Mansfield, candidate for the nomination for congressman from the 17th district, wind up their campaigns.

Atty. George H. Blecker of Mansfield spoke in behalf of Governor Martin L. Davey, and answered accusations which have been hurled against the governor in recent weeks.

"Davey is a good organizer but not a good politician," Blecker said, "or he would not have become involved with the newspapers. But he is a man who is not afraid to stand alone and fight—and that is what we need as governor—a fighter."

James F. Carrigan, former service-safety director was chairman of the meeting.

Ohio Desperado, Last of Gang, Trapped in Baltimore

CHARLES BIRD JAILED, ADMITS EASTERN 'JOBS'

Tattoo Marks and Fingerprints Identify Outlaw Who Escaped in Cleveland.

(By Associated Press)

BALTIMORE — The precarious trail of freedom that Charles Bird, midwest desperado, had followed since breaking jail with his bank-robbing gang in Cleveland last year was dead-ended in a barred jail cell today.

Last of his notorious gang to be caught, the 26-year-old convicted robber and his attractive 24-year-old wife, blond Barbara Seibert Bird, were trapped by detectives last night and held for a series of armed robberies here.

Identity Established.

Captain of Detectives John A. Cooney said Bird admitted his identity and that of his wife after the officer had removed a piece of adhesive tape from the man's arm and revealed the tattooed initials "C. B."

Later the bureau of identification at police headquarters announced the couple had been identified positively through checking their fingerprints with Cleveland police.

Acting Police Commissioner Stephen G. Nelson said Bird confessed to at least seven robberies here, including the National Brewery hold-up in June, and admitted he had planned to hold up six Baltimore banks and business houses.

Tries to Clear Wife.

Bird insisted, detectives said, that although his wife drove his automobile on his "jobs," she "didn't know a thing about what I was doing."

Captain Cooney said Bird told him he and his wife came here in May after a $1,500 hold-up in Boston. They were forced to abandon their car, he said, and later bought a new car. That car, a big green sedan, led to their arrest.

Philip Parks, a liquor truck driver held up Aug. 3, gave detectives a description of the green sedan. Officers finally found where their quarry lived.

Armed detectives, led by Lieuts. Louis Klingenberg and Alan Crone and Sergt. Edward Ward, saw the sedan pull up in front of a North avenue house last night.

They had arranged their trap so the couple had to park between two "planted" cars. A third squad car hemmed in the sedan and three detectives with drawn guns surrounded the machine.

Although both Bird and his wife carried pistols, they surrendered without a struggle. They quoted Bird as saying to his wife:

"What's the use. It looks like it's all over, Babe."

SEEKS RETURN OF PAIR

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Emerich B. Freed, U. S. District Attorney, said today he would request the return of bank robber Charles Bird and his wife, Barbara, from Baltimore, where they were captured last night.

Bird faces bank robbery charges here, and his wife is charged with aiding in the sensational escape of Bird, his brother, Frank, James Widmer, and Theodore Slapik, from Cuyahoga county jail Sept. 22, 1937.

Baby Flown East In Effort To Save Right Eye's Sight

CHICAGO—(UP)—Helaine Judith Colan, suffering a cancerous growth threatening loss of her sight and possibly her life, was flown to New York last night for consultation with "a famous specialist" to determine possibility of saving her remaining right eye, her father said today.

Dr. Herman Colan, dentist, said his wife and her mother, Mrs. Morris Herxhman, flew to New York for a series of three appointments with the unnamed specialist.

Helaine's left eye was removed May 8 on a decision by a jury of eye and x-ray specialists and rabbis called by the young parents to help them decide whether to attempt to save the child's life even with the prospect of total blindness.

Gov. Chandler Faces Quiz in 'Poison Plot'

Up and Down THE STREET

It may have been the heat or perhaps there were "hants" around the corner of West Fourth and Walnut streets yesterday afternoon. Take the case of an auto parked on Fourth street. Suddenly, as if touched by unseen hands, the horn sounded full blast. The continuous noise attracted passersby and Lieut. Paul Whipp came up to investigate. He tried the door but it was locked. Then the owner came running up, unlocked the door and struck the horn several blows before quiet was restored.

If you're a bicycle fan, heat like yesterday's and today's just doesn't mean anything. A couple of Lakewood boys, both 18, dropped into a Mansfield restaurant yesterday about 3:15 and nonchalantly announced they had bicycled from Lakewood, starting about 5 a. m. They were on their way to Fredericktown, they said. Hot? Yes, but they didn't mind it, they added.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch not only enjoyed a vacation in Canada last week but "met up" with an incident that renewed his faith in the integrity of the average human being. En route home, he stopped in Erie, Pa., to buy gasoline. When he arrived in Cleveland he discovered that he had lost his billfold at the Erie gas station. He put it down as "bad luck" and let it go at that. But when he arrived in Mansfield, he found a telegram informing him that his billfold had been found by a station attendant and was being forwarded to him by mail.

Probably more imaginary fish are being caught in Mansfield this week than ever before in history. This is the week Boy Scouts prepare for their annual fishing trip to Rat lake, Canada, and to make sure that they don't miss any choice "catches," they are going through training sessions in the art of hooking 'em under Clarence Silcott of the city engineering staff, who will be among those accompanying the fishermen.

HITS NEW LOW

Contagious Disease Report in City Shows Drop.

Contagious diseases in Mansfield dropped to a new low for the year during July, the monthly report of Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner showed today.

The report showed that only 25 cases of contagious diseases were recorded last month as compared with 80 cases during June.

Three cases each of scarlet fever, chicken pox and whooping cough were reported. There was also two cases of pneumonia and one each of tuberculosis and mumps and 12 cases of venereal diseases.

ED WYNN, WIFE, PLAN DIVORCE

Comedian's Mate Says She Wanted 'Children of My Own.'

NEW YORK — (INS) — Frieda Mierse, Broadway beauty and Ed Wynn, her comedian husband have definitely parted, it was confirmed today. The former show girl announced she would take immediate steps to obtain a divorce with the remark:

"Though I intend to divorce him, I shall always consider him my friend. I want children of my own. I'm tired of knitting things for other people's babies. I want gaiety, I want life, I am weary of being suppressed and depressed."

PASS BAR EXAM

3 From This Section Among 259 Successful Applicants.

Of the 259 men and women who passed the Ohio bar examinations during June, only three were from this section of the state, according to the list of successful applicants announced today by the Ohio Supreme court.

They were Frederick H. Baerkircher, Bucyrus;; Clifford F. Brown, Norwalk;; and Philip J. Wolf, Bellevue. They will be sworn in as attorneys by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the supreme court at Hotel Cleveland, Cleveland, Aug. 15 at 1:30 p. m.

MARION SLAYER FACING CHAIR

Jury Finds Him Guilty, Fails to Recommend Mercy in Returning Verdict.

(By International News Service)

MARION — The electric chair cast an ominous shadow across the path of 48-year-old Harvey L. Roush today as he awaited sentence for the brutal slaying of Homer T. Myers, well-to-do farmer who was found shot to death in his burning farmhouse on April 30.

Mrs. Myers was murdered in the same crime and Roush was indicted for that as well but stood trial only on charges that he killed Myers.

A common pleas court jury, after deliberating for three hours, returned a verdict of guilty of first degree murder late yesterday and failed to recommend mercy.

Roush, an ex-farm hand on the Myers farm, pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity. Throughout his five-day trial the defense attempted to prove that Roush had always been of good repute and had been "forced" to sign a confession.

The state, on the other hand, contended that Roush killed Myers and his wife at the culmination of an agreement over a $1,400 note held by Myers against Roush.

On the witness stand, Roush maintained a stedfast "I don't remember" attitude while friends from Adams county, his old home, told the jury that Roush had always been of "good character."

'CZAR' OF CHICAGO PAINTERS' UNION STEPS FROM HOME, SLAIN

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—James G. Dungan, 36, business agent and acknowledged czar of the Chicago Painters Union, slain last night by assassins, was the victim of rivals who long have been attempting to obtain control of the lucrative union treasury, police believed today.

Dungan was shot in front of his home, as a score of neighbors watched, by a man with whom he apparently was acquainted. He had stepped from the house, intending to go out in his automobile, which was parked at the curb, when the man stopped him. Dungan appeared willing to chat, and sat down on a small iron railing near the curb. Without warning the man whipped out a revolver and shot Dungan twice in the neck. One of the bullets emerged from his jaw.

As he slumped to the ground, an automobile containing three men, drew up to the curb. The gunman jumped in, but before the automobile started away, one of the other men, his face masked with a handkerchief, leaned out a window and fired four shots with a rifle. One struck Dungan in the back of the head, another in the side.

"Dungan's slaying undoubtedly was an attempt by his rivals to gain control of the union," Police Lieut. Haksa said. "They've been trying to get him for five years."

CHILDREN HURT

Brother and Sister Injured as Truck Strikes Wagon.

Four-year-old James Wharton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wharton, 46 Richland avenue, and his two-year-old sister, Rosetta, were injured yesterday when struck by a truck while playing near their home.

Police said the children, who were riding in a coaster wagon, were struck by a truck operated by Roger Roser, as he was backing out of the driveway at 38 Richland avenue.

Police said Roser told them he did not see the children until he heard their cries.

Both children were taken to General hospital where the girl wa streated for a leg injury. The boy who suffered a back injury was being held for observation.

Auto Manufacturer's Wife Dies in Night After Stroke

(Picture on Page 8)

NEW YORK — (INS) — Private funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at St. Bartolomew's church for Mrs. Walter P. Chrysler, who died last night at her Long Island home from a cerebral hemorrhage.

The wife of the auto magnate was stricken at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Members of the fire department company of Great Neck, L. I., were summoned and administered oxygen and an airplane brought her personal physician, Dr. Arthur F. Chase, to her bedside from Lake Placid, N. Y. An iron lung was pressed into service but all the aids of science failed.

Two Others Also Summoned to Testify About Water That Made Them Ill.

(By Associated Press)

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Gov. A. B. Chandler has been asked to appear before a special grand jury to investigate his "poisoning," a commonwealth attorney announced as Sen. Alben Barkley's majority over Chandler from Saturday's Democratic senatorial primary today had mounted to more than 60,000 votes.

Commonwealth Attorney Merit O'Neal said Chandler and two others stricken ill in a hotel here during the Barkley-Chandler campaign had been asked to appear before the jury which is to investigate reports the three were poisoned from drinking water.

But Chandler said last night, "I have not received any message (relative to his appearance before the jury) and I am planning to leave on a vacation trip wednesday."

Leads by 60,000.

Returns from 4,058 of the state's 4,313 precincts, with 118 of the 129 counties complete, gave: Barkley 274,131, Chandler 213,800.

Chandler conceded Barkley's renomination late yesterday and pledged his support in the November general election. In the election Barkley probably will face John P. Haswell, Hardingsburg attorney who apparently won the Republican nomination.

Should Barkley be elected, he will be the first Kentucky senator ever elected for three full consecutive terms.

The other two taken ill with Chandler and asked to appear before the grand jury were finance commissioner Dan J. Talbott and Lieut. Jesse Wyatt of the state police.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Hoover Fails to Support His Emotional Attacks on Newspapers with Proof

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It is impossible to deny that, as J. Edgar Hoover says in an article in Collier's, newspaper reporters sometimes do embarrass the G-men and other police by premature publication of news which tips off criminals that the cops are close.

But it is not necessarily true, and Mr. Hoover offers no evidence that the murder of the Levine boy in New Rochelle was caused or hastened by the conduct of the reporter who trapped the child's father into an admission by posing as an agent of the kidnapers in a telephone conversation.

It would seem more likely that in this case and in the Mattson case the criminals never had any intention to return the victims, and killed them as soon as they conveniently could. A captive, living child is a dangerous handicap to a criminal who knows that a murder adds little if anything to the penalty he has already deserved.

* * *

Mr. Hoover, who boasts that many of his agents are lawyers and that all of them, himself included, know evidence, makes an emotional accusation against the reporters in these two instances, but does not support it with anything that even resembles proof.

Do you want to know something about Mr. Hoover? He is spoiled. The American press has treated him as a sacred cow. His department is still talking about the glamorization of criminals long after the press took to glamorizing him and his men instead.

He has been praised in proportion to the very fine feats of detection which his bureau has achieved, and a little beyond, for the G-men have received entire credit for some jobs in which other agencies took part. He is a great personal press agent, and he has pet writers, or stooges with access to big newspaper and magazine circulation who scratch his back in return for material that glorifies Edgar Hoover and the G's.

* * *

I would like to point out, too, that, as Mr. Hoover himself has indicated more than once, there are a lot of crooked police and prosecutors serving crooked politicians in various cities in this country, and that, as he failed to point out, newspaper reporters often have turned up and called irresistible public attention to evidence which local officials were trying to ignore or were too stupid to discover.

The Hall-Mills case in New Brunswick, N. J., was so badly handled that it was only in response to the work of reporters that the body of Mrs. Mills was exhumed after some time to reveal the fact that she had been not only shot but almost beheaded by a knife. It was the enterprise of a newspaper that compelled the prosecution of Walter Ward in White Plains after the local authorities had dropped proceedings against the son of a millionaire in a slight case of murder. There have been many such incidents.

* * *

As Mr. Hoover has reason to know, the police of Kansas City are the minions of the most corrupt politico-underworld machine that this country has produced since the day in Minneapolis when several of the high-ranking police officials and even the mayor himself were sent to prison, largely through the enterprise of newspaper reporters, for doing business not merely with prostitutes but with burglers and stickups as well.

* * *

Mr. Hoover knows that the Kansas City force is used to protect open gambling and prostitution in places holding the sanction of the organization, and to suppress these activities in plants whose operators do not pay their dues.

Mr. Hoover has had experience with the Kansas City police. He knows that the same is true of much of rural Missouri and rural Indiana, and it has not been long since his own boss, Homer Cummings, was moved to say, apropos several inside jobs in the St. Paul police department, that there was something rotten in St. Paul.

* * *

He seems to need reminding, too, that his own bureau, the FBI, during his own service in the same, has been guilty of crooked work, with particular reference to the Harding era, when Gaston Means was a G-man and William J. Burns was chief.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—I'm reading about Shirley Temple in Bermuda and suddenly I'm thinking about elephants which don't grow in Bermuda.

The news pictures showed Shirley smelling a lily or eating an onion, or maybe it was the other way around, or maybe the cameraman had a new idea. But all I can see, thinking of Shirley in Bermuda, is Shirley and her elephant.

Accustomed as we in Hollywood are to seeing elephants—pink and green and frolicsome blue ones—I doubt if Shirley has ever seen hers. Shirley's mamma has, though, and Shirley's mamma isn't fond of it. She's afraid that some day that pesky critter is going to rar' back and swat her little precious. Mrs. Temple doesn't think of it as an elephant. She labels it Fame.

* * *

BUT I like the elephantine parallel. That old story, remember? About the guy who went in training to lift an elephant. Started with a young one, lifted it every day, figured he could grow in strength with the beastie, and finally wow the circus fans. Something went wrong, but it was a nice idea.

In a peanut shell, that's the Temple theory about handling this elephant called Fame. And now I'll go on record right now that it's going to work. It's working already.

Here's this curly-top kid, nine years old. Before she was four, she'd had a preliminary tussle or two with the animal. It was just a little elephant then, and Shirley got used to it.

If she can remember her life at three, Shirley must know that once in a while people turned in passing for a second look. She must remember that many strangers sighed and gurgled. "Cute child!" or "ISN'T she DARLING?"

Then pictures, and the problem of Shirley's hat-size. The Temples, papa and mamma, tackled it hard. They made it a rule that Shirley shouldn't be ogled and petted. They shielded her from the barrage of Oh's and Ah's. It was a good rule even if it didn't work. Shirley has had more well-meant compliments from well-meaning people than the average child could take. But Shirley isn't average.

Adding inches, pounds, years, Shirley learned to read. Even before that, she could pick out her name on billboards. When she could read what went with the name — adjectives — the novelty had worn thin.

* * *

WHEN Shirley was attending her first previews. I thought some unkind thoughts about these Temples who talked about "protecting" Shirley and yet exposed her to mob applause. I remember one occasion when Shirley had to be hoisted on a press agent's shoulders to get her through the mob, preceded by shouts of "Make way for the queen!" Ever been seasick? That's how I felt. But the Temples had the right idea. If Shirley could get accustomed to crowds early enough, she could take 'em or leave 'em.

* * *

So the elephant grew bigger, but so did Shirley. Most of us howled at this "quiet" little Temple trek across country now ending in Bermuda. Just as we thought, the crowds didn't know it was "quiet." But I'll bet it hasn't hurt Shirley. Even if she doesn't believe her mother's current "line"—that it's Shirley's hard work the crowds are cheering—it hasn't hurt her.

What might hurt her some day, of course, is for the elephant to say bye-bye. But he isn't going to. Every picture she makes points up more clearly that Shirley Temple is going to be an actress—child and woman—for a good long time.
